DEMOCRATS OPEN CONVENTION TODAY

GOP CHAIRMAN HONORS SMITH IN NEW YORK

STAND AGAINST FDR IS PRAISED BY HAMILTON

New York, June 22 (AP)—John D. M. Hamilton, opening the Republican campaign in New York state tonight, told guests at a testimonial dinner that former Governor Alfred E. Smith and four other Democrats who had demanded that President Roosevelt be sidetracked at Philadelphia "apparently made the choice between party and country as millions of others will do."

Hamilton, campaign manager for Governor Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee, inserted in his prepared manuscript the reference to Smith and his colleagues, whom he did not mention specifically by name, shortly before he was to go on the air at the dinner.

Hamilton said:

"In the words of Governor Landon spoken today at Topeka, 'The line of demarcation between fealty to party and loyalty to country is something for each citizen to determine for himself.'

Denounces New Deal

"At least five distinguished and determined citizens led by a man who has rendered a distinguished service to your city and your state apaprently made the choice between party and country as millions of others will do before the general election in November.

"Tonight we honor them for the high ideals that have prompted this action."

Before party workers Hamilton sharply denounced the Roosevelt administration and interpreted the Republican platform as a broadly liberal document.

"I would say,' he described the policies adopted at Cleveland, "that they stress above all else the necessity of maintaining equality of opportunity in the face of threats by public power, by private greed or by artificial handicaps arising in a complex civilization.

"The next important emphasis, as I see it, is upon the self confidence of the people. Against a philosophy which holds that all of us have not hope except to become the ward of an all-powerful government, the platform in its conclusion dares to [illegible]nter x x x."

"The spirit of the platform," Hamilton said, "reflects the spirit of the candidate."

Of the party's presidential nominee, Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, he declared, "the emphasis of equality, the insistence on competent administration, the realization of the direct connection between the policies of government and the life of every citizen reflect Governor Landon's conception of what government should be."

Lashes at Farley

Hamilton, who as new Republican national chairman will be in general charge of the campaign, made it plain President Roosevelt himself would be a paramount issue with the Republicans.

"Confident of our honesty of purpose and of the courage of our leaders, we shall not hesitate in in the course of the campaign to

Petitions Being Circulated Now For Fitzgerald

Lansing, June 22 (AP)—Leslie P. Kefgen, of Bay City, former American Legion state commander, set up headquarters here today for the circulation of nominating petitions to qualify Governor Fitzgerald as a candidate for re-election.

He sent out letters with copies of the petitions, announcing:

"It is contemplated that a primary campaign will not be necessary on the part of the governor, but rather his efforts, aside from his political duties, can be directed from now until November in behalf of the general Republican party activities.

"In view of these circumstances it seems appropriate that the circulation of his petitions be placed entirely on a voluntary basis and be handled by his friends, and the friends of good government entirely apart from his office staff.'

Kefgen is chairman of the state prison commission.

SENATOR PICKS LANDON TO WIN

Vandenberg Lauds Knox, Plans Speaking Tour During Campaign

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 22 (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg predicted on his return home from Washington today that the Landon-Knox ticket "will win in November with a minimum of 307 electoral votes."

The Michigan senator, who withdrew in favor of Governor Alfred M. Landon for the Republican presidential nomination said of his own presidential aspirations: "I do not want to say that I shall not live long enough to repay Michigan's generous and loyal interest [illegible] with the presidential nomination."

He said the appeal of Alfred E. Smith and others Sunday for a repudiation by Democrats of the Roosevelt administration should be "of far-reaching influence."

"Jeffersonians can find nothing in this present administration even remotely reminiscent of the faith of their fathers," Senator Vandenberg said. "Millions of them will follow the courageous lead of Smith, Bainbridge Colby, Governor Joseph B. Ely and others. x x x this is a coalition battle against a common enemy, and these patriotic Democrats should be just as welcome in the ultimate council chambers after next November's victory is won as they are in the battle line."

Praises Gov. Landon

Of the nomination of Col. Frank Knox as Republican candidate for vice-president, Senator Vandenberg remarked: "A better man than I got it.

"I continue to feel," he said, "that I can render my best service to the Landon campaign and subsequently to the Landon administration by maintaining my senatorial status. I shall do everything within my power for the ticket. Governor Landon is an old, personal friend of mine, and he has every quality to make him a great and dependable national leader in this emergency.

"The forces of reliable and clean government which will bring Republicans and Democrats together against the Roosevelt party are going to be the November victors by a comfortable margin, if we put up the battle which the situation requires, and I know we shall."

Commenting on a report that Postmaster General James A. Farley might resign from the Roosevelt cabinet within the near future, Senator Vandenberg said that such action would be "too late to do the Roosevelt party any good.

"This administration has the stamp of Farley spoilsmanship and exploitation all over it,' 'he declared.

Senator Vandenberg said he would rest for a while, preparatory to a speaking campaign which, he said, will take him into at least six states.

Students Sentenced On Burglary Charge

Charlotte, Mich., June 22 (AP)—Circuit Judge R. R. McPeek sentenced Ernest L. Krieger, 21, and Woodrow Wilson, 20, both Olivet college freshmen, today to serve from one to fifteen years in the Michigan reformatory at Ionia. They had pleaded guilty to burglary charges.

Krieger, whose home is in Coloma, Mich., and Wilson, who lives in Cleveland, O., admitted entering the dining hall of the girls' dormitory at the college and four Olivet business houses between June 1 and 10. Most of the loot was recovered.

MURPHY STILL IN DOUBT, MAY BE CANDIDATE

EDMUND SHIELDS IS CHOSEN AS COMMITTEEMAN

BY THOMAS F. COMAN

Philadelphia, June 22 (AP)—Michigan delegates to the Democratic national convention tonight elected Edmund Shields, Lansing, and Mrs. Clara Van Auken, Detroit, to the state's national committee posts.

Frank Murphy, former Detroit mayor and now high commissioner to the Philippines, left his long expected candidacy for governor of Michigan still in doubt with an announcement to the delegates—"I don't know yet what can be done about it."

As a delegate at large to the convention from Michigan, Murphy took part in the state's first caucus, and was a vital factor in Shield's unanimous election as Michigan's national committeeman after his only rival, John J. O'Brien, Detroit, withdrew.

Pleads for Harmony

Mrs. Van Auken's election as national committeewoman to succeed Miss Evelyn Mershon, Saginaw, was made unanimous after she had rolled up a comfortable margin over two opponents, Miss Mershon and Mrs. Dorothy McAllister, Grand Rapids.

Shields succeeds to the post left vacant by the death of Horatio J. Abbott. He made a plea for party harmony, reminding the delegates that factional troubles of the past three years were traceable to patronage disputes.

The caucus elected Frank Picard, Saginaw, to represent the state on the resolutions committee, and named State Treasurer Theodore I. Fry as delegation chairman.

With two candidates, George Welsh and George Schroeder, already bidding for the governorship nomination, delegates waited anxiously in the caucus tonight for some hint from Murphy as to what he intended to do.

References to his candidacy early in the caucus prompted Murphy to shake his head, and when he finally gained the floor, he said a canvass of the Michigan situation had already disclosed there were several men available "capable of winning the governorship."

"It is an honor I do not deserve," said Murphy in reference to his possible candidacy, "and I don't know yet what can be done about it."

He urged likely candidates "not to withhold their decisions, because of his potential entry, or because of "decisions I must make within the next week or ten days."

Prior to Murphy's announcement in the caucus, Representative John Lesinski, Detroit, said there was already a movement underway to boom Welsh, a former Republican power, for the governorship, and Picard for the senatorship. Picard was beaten for the post by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg in 1934. The seat of Republican Senator James Couzens is at stake this year.

Emil J. Hurja, Crystal Falls, Mich., a delegate-at-large, predicted Michigan would be captured by both state and national Democratic tickets this fall. Hurja is an assistant to Chairman Farley of the national committee.

Other convention posts filled by the caucus included the election of John C. Gahaan, Jr., Detroit, to the committee on rules and order of business; Charles E. Misner, Grand Haven, credentials, and Patrick Kane, Port Huron, permanent organization.

After a lively pre-caucus battle between Shields and O'Brien for the national committeemanship, the word was passed around a few minutes before the delegates met that Murphy favored the selection of Shields.

Youth Sentenced On Murder Charge

Coldwater, Mich., June 22 (AP)—Joe Broadwell, 17, pleaded guilty today to a charge of slaying Olin Goodwin, with whom he lived, after an argument over the Louis-Schmeling fight Friday night. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Broadwell, taken into court immediately after Prosecutor William H. Frankhauser had asked for a warrant charging murder in the first degree, waived arraignment and indicated his desire to plead guilty.

Broadwell was arrested several miles from the Goodwin home after he had telephoned officers.

Mrs. Goodwin told officers Broadwell obtained a pistol, belonging to her husband, and intimidated her with it before Goodwin arrived home. As Goodwin entered the house, Broadwell fired a bullet into hes chest. She said the youth told her he was "tired of being bossed." Goodwin died Saturday.

All's Good Cheer in Democratic High Command

If there's any worry in the Democratic camp about the outcome of the November election, it wasn't apparent when these three "powers" of the party conferred in Philadelphia on the eve of the national convention. Left to right, with a poster of F. D. R. above them for inspiration, are Charles Michelson, publicity man for the party; James A. Farley, chairman of the national committee; and W. Forbes Morgan, secretary of the committee.

Farley "Ain't Gonner" Ring the Liberty Bell

BY EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Philadelphia, June 22 (AP)—Paddy Hayes, veteran guardian of the Liberty Bell, stuck close to his post today while Democrats milled about the American antique.

"I understand," said a big-jowled man with a southern accent, "that Jim Farley's gonner ring it tonight."

"Ring what?" asked Mr. Hayes glumly.

"The Liberty Bell."

"Yeah?"

The grey-haired uniformed guard took a step nearer the historical bell.

"Sure," chimed in another visitor, "the postmaster general will make it chime all over Philly."

"Listen brother" said Mr. Hayes, "nobody's done that since 1846 when they tried to make it clang on George Washington's birthday and then it wouldn't work."

Amid a burst of laughter and a sly wink the southern visitor replied that Mr. Farley "always rings the bell."

Taking this as a challenge, the guard launcehed into a dissertation on Liberty Bell ringing.

"Back in 1846" he said, "they even drilled that crack with hopes of making it ring. They swung the clapper as hard as they thought they cought and the best they got was a noise like beating on a tub with a stuffed sock."

By this time Mr. Hayes had a considerable audience gathered beneath the historical and white-glistening rafters of Constitution Hall.

"Yes," he continued, "and Admiral Byrd tried to do it again a couple of years ago when he was at the South Pole."

"Tried from the South Pole?"

"Sure," nodded the guard, "they had a radio hook-up and when the admiral pushed a key down there it tripped a hammer up here."

"And what happened?" chorused the listeners.

"Practically nothing. The hammer tripped but the bell didn't ring. It was a flop."

Someone suggested that Mr. Farley and the Democrats were not at the South Pole but just around the corner.

"I know" said Mr. Hayes "but they ain't going to let him ring this bell. Just tap it. They're always doing that. Even the Boy Scouts."

PLANE CRASHES ON NORMANDIE

Hot Air Over Funnel of Ship Robs Craft of Buoyancy

Gosport, Eng., June 22 (AP)—A dazed and rather frightened young Royal Air force pilot crawled out of the wreckage of his plane on a deck of the giant French liner S. S. Normandia today and told Captain Rene Pugnet:

"I am terribly sorry about this."

The pilot, who was only shaken up, crashed when he tried to fly over a huge steaming funnel and struck the stay of a mast. Hot air robbed his wings of their lift and only a supreme effort prevented his dropping into the funnel.

"The landing," said Captain Pugnet, "was the one of the most extraordinary sights I have seen. The bomber just sat down like a stone. The undercarriage ripped to bits a few inches from the forward mast."

The plane crashed into a derrick unloading an automobile, the derrick broke and the crash crashed on the deck, half on and half off the ship.

The pilot, Lieut, G. K. Torsey, said when he flew over the funnel he felt as if the plane were being "sucked in."

The Normandie, just in from New York, was disembarking passengers from New York.

Lieut. Horsey went ashore. The Normandie, the airplane still on deck, sailed for Le Havre with the unexpected cargo.

Summer Sessions Opened At MSC

East Lansing, June 22. (AP)—Summer sessions opened at Michigan State college today with an enrollment of approximately 850, a new record.

Last year's enrollment reached a peak of 750, and college authorities expected it would be pushed farther into the background by Thursday with a total approximating 1,000.

The decision of 450 regular students to remain for the summer study period was partly responsible for the increase.

College Teacher Killed In Accident

Grayling, Mich., June 22. (AP)—Dr. Mamie St. George, 52-year-old Des Moines, Ia., college teacher, was killed late today and two Cleveland, O., college instructors were injured in an automobile accident 12 miles north of Grayling.

Miss Evelyn Dilley, one of the Cleveland teachers, was in critical condition at a Grayling hospital while Miss Virginia Burchort, of 933 Coledonia avenue, Cleveland Heights, O., suffered less serious injuries. The two teachers declined to disclose the colleges at which they taught or further information concerning their dead companion.

Officers who investigated said the two rear tires on the automobile in which they were riding apparently burst simultaneously. The car plunged off the road, turned end over end several times and ripped the top from the car. The three teachers were enroute to Mullett Lake near Cheyboygan where they had planned to spend the summer.

PAYS $75 FINE

Charlotte, Mich., June 22. (AP)—Louis Levy, 39, of Des Moines, Ia., paid a $75 fine today after pleading guilty to practicing optometry without being registered with the state.

LANDON PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN

Notification Will Be at Topeka, Kansas, on July 23

Topeka, Kas., June 22 (AP)—On the broad steps of the Kansas state capital Gov. Alf M. Landon will be notified July 23 that he is the Republican presidential nominee in a ceremony that will formally launch his campaign.

The governor said today his acceptance speech, tentatively set for 8 p. m. (CST) would be made shortly before he starts his first speaking tour of the east. The initial address of his tour probably will be made at West Middlesex, Pa., his birthplace.

In response to press conference inquiries, Governor Landon said he had no comment on the anti-Roosevelt statement of Alfred E Smith and four associates, but he made this observation:

"The line of demarcation between fealty to party and loyalty to country is something for each citizen to determine for himself."

The governor also announced that he would confer here July 9 with Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, on the 'farm problem as well as other phases of the national campaign."

Expect Record Crowd

Col. Robert McCormick, Chicago publisher, came here by chartered plane to confer at luncheon with the governor. On departing Colonel McCormick said in an interview that he believed the third party movement, with Rep. William Lemke as its presidential candidate, would draw the bulk of its support from Democratic ranks.

With the designation of the time and place for Landon's notification—the same surroundings in which the late Charles Curtis twice formally accepted the Republican vice presidential nomination—Topeka began planning for what it believes will be the largest crowd in the state's history. Governor Landon is the first Kansan to be nominated by a major party for the presidency.

It had not been determined today whether Rep. Bertrand Snell, chairman of the national convention committee on notification, would make the notification speech. At the governor's office attaches said Snell might not be able to attend, due to conflict with vacation arrangements.

State Purse String Handled By Woman

Lansing, June 22 (AP)—Michigan's purse strings lay in the hands of a woman today, for the first time in the state's history.

Hattie Bode of Fremont, deputy state treasurer, took over the duties of Treasurer Theodore I. Fry, who was in Philadelphia attending the Democratic national convention.

SEEKS RENOMINATION

Flint, Mich., June 22. (AP)—William W. Blackney, Republican representative in congress from the sixth district, announced today that he would seek renomination.

Unidentified Man Burns To Death

Toledo, O., June 22 (AP)—One man burned to death, another was missing and twelve other persons were burned or injured in two fires here late today.

An unidentified man died in a fire at the Foster apartments in which six others were burned.

E. A. Jeffrey, manager of the Pecos Valley Alfalfa Milling company plant which was swept by a five-hour fire, said an employe, Howard Taylor, 21, of Curtice, Ohio, was missing.

Four other employes were trapped on the roof of the main mill when the fire suddenly went out of control. Three of the concern's four buildings were razed, causing a damage estimated by Jeffrey at between $75,000 and $100,000.

Four men were taken to a hospital. Two others were slightly injured.

GOVERNOR HITS COUNTY BOARDS

Fitzgerald Assails Fight for Political Advantage in Relief

Lansing, June 22. (AP)—Governor Fitzgerald and the attorney general's office aimed criticism today at county boards of supervisors, fighting for the right to dictate who shall administer relief in their counties.

A ruling by Deputy Attorney General James F. Shepherd said the state emergency relief commission alone has the power to designate the employees of county relief commissions, and the qualifications of the employees. The opinion did not apply to the county administrators, their deputies and directors.

Coincidentally Governor Fitzgerald served notice that "sparring for political advantage in welfare is out—they might as well save their breath."

The controversy between the supervisors and the emergency relief commission flared last week when the commission ordered a merit system of employment. The commission reserved to itself the authority to pass on the qualifications and credentials of county welfare commission employes, which the supervisors contended was an encroachment on counties' rights.

Approves Merit System

"We are of the opinion," Shepherd ruled, "that, with the exception of administrators, deputy administrators and directors, the state emergency welfare relief commission may designate who shall be employed by the county relief commissions, and the terms and qualifications of their employment."

Governor Fitzgerald called attention to the fact he has approved the principle of the proposed merit system. He added that the commission's recent reorganization of local administrations to permit greater participation by county officials in the administration of relief likewise had his approval.

M. B. McPherson, chairman of the state supervisors association, has called a public hearing for Friday on the proposed merit system of employment. Governor Fitzgerald said he would attend it he were invited, adding:

"And I may tell them something. I don't care whether a Democrat or a Republican administers relief. I am interested in seeing it properly administered.

"If political advantage is at the bottom of this they might as well save their breath." He emphasized that by "they" he was referring to either state or local officers who might be seeking to control relief for political reasons.

Fishing Season In Inland Lakes Will Be Open Thursday

Lansing, June 22 (AP)—State conservation officials prepared today for a late rush of anglers seeking rod licenses for the opening of the general inland lakes fishing season Thursday.

Fred A. Westerman, head of the fisheries division of the conservation department, predicted the number of licensed fishers would surpass last year's 593,000. He thought the prospects were for a good fishing season, too, and hoped for a hot spell that would speed fishermen toward Michigan lakes.

Westerman said fish were injured by the severe winter in only 30 of the 5,000 inland lakes, adding that some of the affected lakes were small.

The opening of the inland lakes season will permit fishing in lakes not opened by a previous conservation commission order. About 200 were designated as trout and pike lakes and opened to fishing earlier in the spring. The general season extends through Labor Day, when the trout season closes. Bass fishing will continue until December 31.

DELEGATES ASSAIL SMITH FOR RAPPING FDR

BY JOHN F. CHESTER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Philadelphia, June 22 (AP)—Paying little open heed to rumbles of thunder on the far right and left, Democratic delegates tonight moved serenely and festively toward the formal opening of their national convention tomorrow.

Beneath the harmony-tinted surface of a gathering set to cheer and unanimously renominate Roosevelt and Garner, there was some bitter talk—fighting words thrown at Al Smith because of his "oust Roosevelt" statement of last night. But actual convention disturbances appeared likely to be minor indeed. The campaign ahead, of course, was another matter.

In fact, barring the apparent improbability of Smith taking his seat as a delegate, only two major convention question marks remained visible. One stood behind an easily-ended floor struggle against abrogation of the two-thirds rule; another hung over the heightening discussion about the Roosevelt platform.

Hustle and Bustle

James A. Farley, national committee chairman, held a press conference atop a hotel lobby jammed to the doors with delegates and noise. Outside, crowds lined the flag-festooned marquee after the manner of a movie fever.

"Absolutely not," Farley snapped in answer to a question of whether the call upon the delegates to "take a walk" away from Roosevelt, made yesterday by Smith and four other insurgents and now officially received here, would be presented to the convention. He took the attitude that if Smith wanted to start a fight here, let him come.

"This is a Democratic convention," said Farley. "Smith is a delegate. The floor is his if he wants it."

Governor Lehman of New York, who once had the backing of the 1928 Democratic presidential nominee, was another who hit at Smith. He enjoyed, said Lehman, the support of "only a handful of Democrats."

At least one man, Alfred J. Kennedy, alternate delegate from New York City, called upon Smith to come before the convention. The former New York governor tonight had not said yes or no—although few expected him to come. Nor would be reply in New York to a question whether he would speak in behalf of Alf Landon, the Republican nominee.

As for the thunder on the left, Farley reiterated that neither the platform nor other plans would be changed to woo supporters from the Lemke-Coughlin Union party.

Committee Meets

Officially, the only business here today was a meeting of the Democratic national committee. In settling the main one of three delegate contests, involving Minnesota the committee ruled that both factions be seated, splitting the state's 22 votes between them. One side disputed this decision, however, and the prospects of a local floor fight on that issue appeared.

The committee formally ratified the selection of Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky to deliver the

GRANT DEFEATS HEINER HENKEL

Atlantan Wins Plaudits in His Wimbledon Debut

BY ROGER GREENE
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Wimbledon, Eng., June 22. (AP)—Bryan M. Grant, mighty tennis atom from Atlanta shelled Heiner Henkel, German Davis cup star, from the all-England championships today as favorites otherwise progressed to the second round in more or less routine fashion.

Spotting the German the first two sets, Grant uncorked a savage rally that shunted Henkel to the sidelines, won the Atlantan an ovation from the crowd and carried him into the second round along with five others of the American delegation that numbered eleven when the championships began.

Once he had got himself organized, Grant, who was making his Wimbledon debut, was unstoppable. Covering the court with the agility that has made him a redoubtable antagonist for any foe, the tiny Atlantan fired a barrage of perfectly executioned ground strokes that Henkel simply could not handle and the German bowed out of the tournament, beaten 5-7, 3-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-2.

Don Budge Advances

Of the other American victors, Donald Budge, red-thatched star from Oakland, Calif., played impressively to eliminate H. A. Hare of Great Britain, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4, but Wilmer Allison, American champion from Austin, Tex., favored his lame hip and applied no more pressure than was necessary in putting out the former English junior champion, Robert Mullikan, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

Joining these three in the second round were John Van Ryn of Philadelphia, Gene Mako of Los Angeles, and David N. Jones, former Columbia captain. Van Ryn disposed of Roland Morton, Great Britain, 6-3, 8-6, 6-2 and Mako defeated another Briton, Laurie Shaffi, 6-3, 6-0, 6-4. Jones, drawing one of the day's largest galleries on the strength of his howitzer service which British experts call faster than Big Bill Tilden's in his prime, won from E. J. David of Great Britain, 6-3, 6-1, 5-7, 6-2.

Five other Americans were summarily eliminated during the first day's play. Gerald Stratford of California put up a fine fight against Fred Perry of England but the defending Wimbledon titleholder won in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3, 6-1. Hal Surface, promising youngster from Kansas City bowed to Nigeli Sharpe, English veteran, 6-4, 6-2, 6-1. Three lesser tennis lights, Marriman Cunninggim, formerly of the University of South Carolina, W. L. Breese, former Harvard player from Washington, D. C., and W. W. Robertson, were the other American casualties.

Curb Mart Shares Close With Gains

New York, June 22 (AP)—Refreshed by the week-end respite and undaunted by conflicting news, traders opened and closed curb stocks higher today.

While it was not an uninterrupted procession from beginning to end, final prices were only slightly under highs of the day.

Royalite Oil, Ltd., and Bell Telephone of Canada each advanced 3½ points to 31 and 151, respectively. Aluminum Co. of America gained 1¾ at 122, Gulf Oil 1 5-8 at 82½ and American Cyanamid "B" 1 1-8 at 34¼.

Newmont Mining finished 1 point higher at 85. Electric Bond & Share common moved up ½ while the 6 percent preferred gained 2¼ at 85 and the 5 percent preferred 1¼ at 76¾.

A few shares turned downward. Quaker Oats was off 1 at 122 and Montgomery Ward "A" off ¾ at 152½.

International Utilities $7 preferred, after failing to sell in more than a year, leaped 58 points to 88 on 50 transfers. The stock has accumulations of $7.12 a share.

Transfers were 256,000 against 221,000 shares Friday.

Raising Of Sunken Steamer Is Begun

Detroit June 22 (AP)—Workmen started today a three-week, $13,000 job of raising the sunken excursion Steamer Tashmoo.

The salvage task began with preparations for a Coffer-Dam around the boat, which struck a dock near Amherstburg, Ont., last Thursday. The vessel sank after 1,400 passengers and its crew of 120 were put off safely.

keynote spech tomorrow night, and of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, to take over, with a spech, the permanent chairman's gavel Wednesday night.

Farley tested the loudspeaker system in the huge but simly decorated convention convention hall while the organist played "I'm Putting All My Eggs in One Basket." Farley's gavel actually will fall about noon, eastern standard time tomorrow. He will make a speech and the convention will be on.

Tonight informal platform arguments increased. Senator Wagner of New York, the prospective resolutions chairman, has a Roosevelt-approved draft. Whether it includes suggestions for crop insurance. a currency backed by gold and silver, farm-tenant relief and other proposals remained undisclosed.

The prospective fight over the Roosevelt proposal to have the nominees selected by a simple majority vote rather than by a two-thirds ballot waned rather than waxed during the day. Opposition from the south continued, but it appeared disorganized.

Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina, the United States ambassador to Mexico, was one southerner who lashed at the two-thirds rule and urged its abrogation.

The platform discussion prior to Senator Wagner's arrival centered not only on the scores of planks brought forward by individuals, but also upon whether at least part of the Roosevelt draft might not be couched in general rather than specific and detailed language.

That is, a general objective might be stated in a few words, with the details of how the goal would be reached left for President Roosevelt to expound later.

There was hotel lobby as well as upstairs conferences also on the writing of a monopoly plank, with some influential Democrats urging that the convention go on record as favoring a more strictly worded call for the smashing of monopolies than the Republicans adopted at Cleveland.

Delegates Arrive

Senator Thomas of Oklahoma kept alive discussion of his proposed money plank, which called both for a further devaluation of the dollar and for a currency backed by both gold and silver. Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, if he takes the seat of that state's delegation on the resolutions committee, certainly will offer fight against the Thomas plank. The Roosevelt currency plank remained guarded throughout the day, but was a matter of much speculation.

The convention's 1,106 delegates, and the more than 400 alternates, had arrived here in almost full force tonight, and this usually staid Quaker city became the scene of the first of a long series of official entertainments.

Mayor S. Davis Wilson, who will make a welcoming address to the convention tomorrow, held a dinner for visiting governors. There now are 38 Democratic governors, and many were here as delegates.

The dinner was followed by a reception at Independence Hall. The soft mallet used for such occasions was unsheathed to ring the historic Liberty Bell in honor of the visitors.

A prize fight, with one of the contestants a negro, and a midnight dinner for the 700 newspapermen at work here were other parts of the night's festivities. The round will be taken up again in the morning, with a scrapple breakfast for the women delegates.

At his press conference, Farley concluded his answering of questions about the Smith group and the Union party with a statement:

"I'm not worried about a thing—sincerely, I am not worried about anything."

As he has at almost every press conference held during the last week, he repeated today his assertion thhat he was not conceding a single state to the opposition in the November election.

Even Farley smiled, however, when a feminine correspondent in the back of the crowded room, piped out:

"How about Maine?"

When someone remarked that there seemed to be some differences in his predictions and those of John D. M. Hamilton, new chairman of the Republican national committee, who says that Landon will carry 42 states, Farley replied:

"The discrepancy is on Hamilton's part—but he's all right. He's a good fellow. And Kansas is a splendid state. (Farley's references to Landon as governor of a "typical prairie state" stirred a storm recently). I am sure Kansas will exercise the same excellent judgement it did in 1932, when it gave Mr. Roosevelt a majority."

The postmaster general and national party chairman, who also is chairman of the New York state Democratic committee, stepped into his latter capacity in discussing the position of Governor Lehman of New York.

Lehman has said he would not run again, and the new deal high command has been after him to change his mind. Farley, after saying that he had chosen the New York governor to make one of the seconding speeches for Roosevelt's renomination, added that he had conferred with Lehman on this and would confer with him again. Presumably this second conference was set for the purpose of arguing with the banker-governor to seek re-election.

It is generally conceded that the chances of Roosevelt for carrying the Empire state would be enhanced if Lehman headed the state ticket.

Michigan In Washington

Esther Van Wagoner Tufty

Newshawks have deserted Senator Vandenberg's office. The moot question of "Will he be nominated for president or vice-president?" is at last settled and therefore his news value drops to a temporary zero.

The boys moved right over to the senior Michigan senator's office because the neat little question of "Whether or not Senator Couzens would bolt the Republican party and run on the Democratic ticket for senator?" was hot. The senator had promised to talk after he took a squint at the platform to see if it was too "old guard", and to squint at the candidates chosen to top the Republican party.

In a typical crisp statement of seven lines, he settled the long speculation on "What will Couzens do?" "I am entering my name as a candidate for nomination in the Republican primaries", says he, adding the tense line, "I am a Republican", which was news to the old guard Republicans of Michigan.

Good old independent "Jim" Couzens stays in character by maintaining that he "will continue to consider each issue on its merits".

Hats off to Senator Vandenberg in this period of anti-climax because now, free of candidature, he is talking with a great deal of real enthusiasm of giving a series of campaign speeches for Governor Landon—after a month's good rest over at the Vandenberg summer home in western Michigan, near Holland.

Although it is not generally known, ex-congressman John Lehr, of Monroe, the Democrats' final choice for United States district attorney, is contemplating a new solution, when actually in office, for the headache problem of naming his staff of eleven attorneys and clerks, by choosing a committee of five to do this ticklish job for him. Smart boy—right at the beginning.

Congressman Dondero came back from the Republican convention all pepped up that the Republicans are going places, but profoundly disappointed that into the platform an endorsement of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway was not included.

All that he and Congressman Christianson, of Minnesota, representatives of the special waterway committee, say they asked for was one little sentence, to wit: "We favor the immediate ratification of the treaty with the dominion of Canada for the completion of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway".

Strangely enough, such a provision has been in other Republican platforms, but this year when the agitation is strong for action, it was omitted. However, Dondero says this cannot be interpreted that the Republicans will not support the project, which was favored by both ex-president Hoover and President Roosevelt.

Now we wonder what success Congressman Dingell, of Detroit, will have in getting a similar plank in the Democratic platform, which has never included such a provision.

As Roy Octavus Cohen might say to Congressman Main: "Is you or is you ain't for the Townsend plan?"

Stories conflict anent the recent big Townsend rally in Allegan, where leader O. G. Davis, of Chicago, deplored Main's apparent repudiation of the Townsend platform which won him the third district congressional election. Then came the mysterious telegram said to have been received directly from Main by the Battle Creek delegation, stating that "Main stands 100 percent for Townsend and the McGroarty bill".

Now, in Washington, the congressman denies sending such a message, but does not hesitate to reiterate his stand: he is still for the McGroarty bill—his only criticism is that Townsend and his co-workers made a mistake in their relations with the congressional investigating committee.

point out some fallacies and failures of the Roosevelt administration," he said.

"For, a nation bowed down in debt, floundering in social uncertainty and industrial lethargy is entitled to know the truth."

He lashed out at his Democratic rival campaign manager, Postmaster General James A. Farley, calling him "my old friend 'Three-Way' Farley.

"Indeed, the greatest indictment that can be levelled against Mr. Roosevelt is that he has allowed millions of men and women who wanted work to continue to subsist just above the starvation line while he pursued pet and peculiar policies of his own which every reliable employer in industry and honest leader of agriculture continued to assure him prevented any possible increase in available jobs.

"A correction of this obstinate and inhumane policy is one of the first estimates of recovery and the greatest duty we owe to the unemployed. To the fulfillment of that duty and a realistic solution of that problem the party stands pledged.

"In the meanwhile it wil correct another injustice and another inequality the injustice and inequality that arise from the pesent methods of administering relief without regard to local conditions and without encouragement for those who are sincerely trying to become self-supporting."

BOARD STUDIES ELECTION LAW

Appointive County Road Commission May Be Abolished

Consideration is being given by the Delta county board of supervisors to a proposal for having members of the county road commission elected by the people instead of making them appointees of the board of supervisors, as they are at present. The plan was submitted at the board meeting in Escanaba Monday, and after some discussion it was turned over to the legislative committee, with instructions to the prosecuting attorney's office to get a ruling from the attorney general on the legality of declaring the commissioners' offices vacated and allowing the voters to choose a new commission at the next election.

Appropriations voted by the board Monday included $100 for the trades and labor convention at Escanaba and $8,000 for the upkeep of Pinecrest Sanatorium. A bill of $410.50 from the Lawrence Scudder company for auditing Garden township books in the Gauthier case, tried in circuit court here, was reduced when the auditing company accepted the county finance committee's offer to pay $15 instead of $25 a day for auditing.

A request was received from Harold Beach of Fairbanks township, asking that he be paid $82 for sheep killed by dogs. Members of the board could not agree as to the method of payment as to whether it should be assessed to the county or township, and the matter was referred to the agricultural committee, with power to act.

Supervisor Ole Peterson of Gladstone suggested that the county renew their efforts to have a shelter erected at Pioneer Trail park, and the road and parks committee was given authority to set up the project as a WPA job. The sum of $500 was appropriated for the purpose at a previous meeting.

C. E. Collier, representing the state tax commission, addressed the supervisors Monday afternoon, giving an outline of the work being done in correcting tax rolls and descriptions as a WPA project. Fifteen men are allowed each township for the work, employed on a four eight-hour day basis for 128 days a month.

Circus Is Coming To Escanaba; Bill Poster Crew Here

Advertising cars No. 1, 2, and 3 of the Seils-Sterling Circus are in Escanaba today and Bill Page, advance crew manager, with his big crew of billposters, lithographers, bannermen, and programers accompanied by the shows publicity man have been busy covering the city and country with alluring posters flashing the tidings that the "Biggest Motorized Circus in the United States" will be here on Tuesday June 30.

Seils-Sterling Circus is twice as large this season as ever before with its big fleet of semi-trailers and its 20 sleeping coaches. This is the biggest organization of its kind in this country and is owned by the Lindeman Brothers of Sheboygan, Wisconsin. They are making their 17th annual tour, having also shown at Escanaba last year.

The big show canvas is all new this season including a mamoth 120 foot round top with four 40 foot middle pieces. There's a big five pole menagerie and a five pole side show, also a new big cook house and pad room where all the performers get ready for their appearance in the big tented arena.

This organization which moves like clock work in its trips into another city each day is featuring this 1936 season some of America's finest big time circus acts including, Captain Erwin Kluder, famous German wild animal trainer with his groupe of savage African lions; the Hodgini Brothers riding act of wonderful bareback somersault riders; Monhamed Troupe of dark skinned Arabian tumblers; the Peasley Trio, famous cannon ball jugglers; Heller Sisters and twenty pretty girls iron jaw artists; Senoritta Thressia Morella of Spain, wonder girl aerialist; Gary Owen, famous Hollywood film star and cowboy with his gang of cowboys and cowgirls; and Prof. Arthur Mac Heller's fine concert band "one of the finest on the road today" in a unusually fine circus musical program.

Flat Rock (AP)—A four-year-old boy, Joseph Myers, was killed Monday by an automobile as he walked along Telegraph Road five miles north of here.

Newberry Hospital Issues "The News"

Newberry, June 22—Employees and patients of the Newberry State hospital have published the first edition of their institution paper, "The News", and a fine newsy and interesting paper it is. With a cover design showing a corner of the institution grounds with the new water tower showing above the trees, the paper contains news, verse, special articles and features. Special articles on the various departments show the work that is being done and contain valuable information. The farm devision, with an article each on crops, swine and poultry and the dairy are well done. The work of the occupational therapy department gives special mention to those craftsmen and women who are carrying on old crafts or developing new ones in weaving, woodwork, needlework, leather and metals, besides repairs. The recreational department carries descriptions of the work being done there and the hospital orchestra receives good notices.

One of the most interesting and, to one reader at least, most helpful and hopeful indication, is the amount of humor and fun to be found in the institution, as reflected in the "News". Also, the editors, all patients, have a keen interest in their own cases and take an intelligent part in their recovery. The article on the social service department, explains the need of carefully made family histories as well as personal histories.

An excellent example of realtistic reporting is found in "Cottage "G" On the Air", also done by a patient. Present day popular songs, played and sung by some of the patients, is interspersed and overlaid with other sounds, each indicating the special type of patient. Nurses and friends of the patients recognize in this report, many of their best loved patients. This patient reporter has done a piece of work of which she can be justly proud.

FROM THE ISLE OF MANN

Two visitors from the Isle of Mann are the guests at the George Roat farm in Lakefield township. They are James Kneen and his daughter, Miss Dorothy Kneen who have arrived to visit Fred Kneen, a resident of this locality for the past ten or a dozen years. Mr. and Miss Kneen left Liverpool in May 30 and arrived at the Roat home on June 10. Remarking that with the exception of the money there was little difference between countries, Mr. Kneen said: "There is so much friendship between people that it is strange there ever can be wars."

A country which is an Island, shaped like a fish, located in the Irish Sea, Mann has a population of about 60,000 persons, has no millionaires, no poor, has paid off its war debt, has the oldest parliament on earth going back a thousand years, and was the first country to give women the vote. Tourist trade is the first industry with farming second. This country, famed for its great writer, Hall Caine, and for its tailless cats, is becoming increasingly popular as a summer resort. It never snows on Mann, the gulf stream, sweeping up from the south, splits on the rocks at the south end of the island and swirls about it, keeping it always several degrees warmer than England. The Kneens are going to Detroit, Cleveland, Niagara Falls, on their way back to the sea board. They expect to return home sometime in August.

5 FOREST FIRES

Newberry, June 22—Five fires, all of them unimportant and now under control, kept conservation officers and crews busy over the week end. A slash fire two miles north of Whitedale was held to less than an acre. A clearing fire on the Luce county poor farm on North Manistique Lake got away in the brisk wind but was quickly subdued. Four miles northwest of Seney an abandoned shack burned down, the fire spreading some, but was quickly under control. A slash fire north of Spur 75 called out 10 men from Hartman's camp and 25 CCC boys. It was okay Sunday niht. A small fire on Chris Brown Lake Sunday Sunday p. m. was quickly out. This is the first real active day in the fire season.

KALMBACH-ELLER

Miss Mary Kalmbach of McMillan was married on Saturday evening to August Eller of St. Jacques, Mich. The double ring service of the Methodist Episcopal church was read by Rev. Alvin Doten. This is the third wedding in the Kalmback family this preacher has performed. The young couple will make their home in Green Bay, Wis.

NEWBERRY LOCALS

Two changes in the local churches take place at once. Rev. Fr. Eiling, pastor of St. Gregory's Catholic church for many years will go to the Hubbell church July 1st. Rev. Karpenski, pastor of the English Lutheran church has accepted a call to serve the congregation at Townsend, Wis., and preached his farewell sermon on Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. F. Merle Townsend and family left here on Monday to attend the Detroit Area Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at Royal Oak. Following this they will spend two weeks with relatives in New York state.

Detroit (AP)—Joseph Tomiak, 24, who refused to pay the funeral expenses for his wife, killed in an accident, was sentenced to serve two and a half to fifteen years in the Detroit house of correction Monday. He was convicted of a charge of manslaughter after witnesses testified his wife was forced from a truck during a fight and fell to the pavement.

Detroit (AP)—Joseph Battle, 46, died in a hospital Monday from injuries received when he was struck by a policeman's night stick. Patrolman John Smith told superior officers he wielded the club to stop a fight. Battle insisted he was not fighting, but trying to separate his son and another man.

Grand Rapids (AP)—Nominating petitions were circulated here Monday for Ernest T. Conlon, assistant attorney general, for the Republican candidacy for lieutenant-governor. Conlon, former state senator and city manager of Grand Rapids, was an unsuccessful candidate for the nomination two years ago.

Better Fishing Wanted

A DESIRE for more hatcheries and the planting of more game fish was expressed in a resolution adopted at the silver anniversary conference of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau at Menominee.

Speakers who addressed the gathering also pointed to the need of improving fishing conditions if the Upper Peninsula is to make a serious bid for the tourist business. One of the reasons why Ontario is enjoying such a heavy tourist traffic is that the province offers splendid fishing possibilities.

Under the WPA program, hatchery facilities in the Upper Peninsula have been enlarged, all of which promises that there will be a heavier planting program in the future. There is a fly in the ointment, however. Hatchery operations cannot be expanded as much as the conservation department desires because of the lack of funds.

There was considerable talk at the Menominee meeting concerning the advisability of seeking legislation to raise the general rod license fee to one dollar. During the depression, the legislature cut the fee to 50 cents, but it is claimed that the public would gladly pay an extra half dollar for the privilege of fishing in Michigan waters, now that business and employment conditions have improved materially.

No doubt, Michigan sportsmen will not complain against paying the dollar fee. The tourists from other states are now required to pay one dollar for a special 10-day license and two dollars for the entire season. If we are to encourage the out-of-state fishermen to come here, it probably would be wise to leave the non-resident license fees unchanged. After all, the tourists take an insignificant number of the fish out of our waters but spend a lot of money while vacationing in this state.

The City Manager

BECAUSE of the absence of specific charges, it is difficult to determine the true status of the imbroglio in which the Escanaba city council and City Manager T. F. Kessler became involved.

Upon the advice of City Attorney H. J. Rushton, the council will redraft its complaint and name specifically some of the alleged acts of mismanagement and inefficiency, which are to be offered as reasons why the city manager has been dismissed.

It has been indicated that Mr. Kessler will carry his fight against the dismissal to the circuit court under the provisions of the Veterans' Preference Act. The outcome of his fight will depend, of course, upon what kind of a case the council will present.

Mr. Kessler's record as city manager, however, should be judged in a fair and impersonal manner. It is natural that anyone who holds such a position over a period of years will accumulate enmities as a result of misunderstandings and other reasons. It is just impossible for a city manager to please everyone.

Differences of opinion as to the manner in which the city's affairs should be handled are bound to develop. But such personal conflicts are not always sufficient grounds for the dismissal of a public official, who has what has been considered a good record in the field of city management. Substantial reasons for dismissal will have to be offered in order to satisfy the citizens of Escanaba that the city council is acting in the best interests of the community.

Jaywalker Control

IT'S DECIDEDLY encouraging to note that the law has at last caught up with one of the leading annoyances of American city life—the paywalker.

St. Louise has done just that. There the boar dof aldermen recently approved a pedestrian control bill which provides fines of $3 to $500 for jaywalking. St. Louis acted, officials explained, because they found jaywalking contributed in great measure to traffic fatalities and serious injuries.

And doubtless there is not another large city in the country in which this condition does not exist. The St. Louis system, possibly, is the answer.

Voting As We Please

WHATEVER are the political ramifications of the current campaign year, with its talk of third party movements, party "walks," and coalitions, this much is certain—the voters are going to use their franchise.

Already there are positive indications that the American electorate is going to take an unprecedented interest in voting this fall. In the recent Maine primary, for instance unofficial totals reveal a vote exceeding that of 1932. And in recent primaries in other states the public interest has shown up equally well.

Certainly, this is one of the most healthful trends of our national life. Use of the ballot is a prerequisite of good citizenship.

And it's great, too, to know that in a world already half muffled under dictatorships we in America continue to vote as we please!

Curtains!!

JIM JONES lives out in the country, twenty miles from his office, and drives to work daily. The drive takes place largely on a modern highway, with the last few miles confined to busy streets.

The drive can be made safely in about thirty-five minutes. But Jim would feel ashamed of his record if he ever took that long. So, by "stepping on her" hard, he manages to make it in twenty-five minutes, and sometimes less. The other day, in fact, he did it in twenty-two minutes—a saving of thirteen minutes over the time taken by more conservativ pilots.

Tha saving of tim is a great boon to Jim. It permits him to spend ten or fifteen minutes talking about golf to the boys at the cigar stand, or reading the funny papers. And the day he made his record he spent the saved time, plus quite a few minutes more, boasting about it.

Of course, Jim has to weave in and out of traffic occasionally, cursing the slowpokes who move along at a sedate forty-five. And sometimes he has to steal a right of way. Now and then he misses a crash by an inch, and after the first flush of nervousness passes, he chuckles to himself about what a good driver he is. Once he did have a minor accident, but the insurance company paid for that.

There are a good many thousand Jim Joneses driving cars in this country. They go on for years with nothing happening to them—and then the inevitable occurs. Curtains!!

LEMKE ENTERS
(Iron Mountain News)

THE third candidate is Representative Lemke, of North Dakota. He has the support of Father Coughlin and assurance of delivery to him of as many of the adherents of the League of Social Justice as will follow the Coughlin leadership. The attitude of the remnants of the Long organization and of the Townsend leaders toward his candidacy has not yet been revealed, but if they do not go along formally there is no doubt that the movement will have the support of many of their followers.

Lemke will run on a radical platform. Of its appeal to large numbers of men and women who have been hard hit of late years there can be no question. Its practical bearing on 1936 politics will depend to some extent on the success met with in qualifying the ticket for presentation to the voters. On this point the laws of 48 states must be reckoned with.

The leaders of the old parties have so far been chary of comment. In this they are wise. Until the attitude toward it of the former Long and the Townsend followers has been defined, and it is known in how many states the ticket can be presented, it is difficult to estimate its bearing on the 1936 campaign.

There is, however, a fully warranted disposition to assume that it will be more harmful to the Democrats than to the Republicans. None can question that its appeal will be most pronounced to voters who in the 1932 election supported Roosevelt rather than Hoover. Whatever the Democratic platform may be and whatever appeal Roosevelt may make to the electorate, platform and appeal will be to the left of the Republican position. As between Roosevelt and Landon it is a fair presumption that most voters who will go along with Lemke would prefer Roosevelt.

The candidacy of Lemke is not at all to the liking of LaFollette, Norris, other Progressives and the Farmer-Labor party leaders, who have been supporting the administration. In their opinion the time is not ripe for a third party. It has been their purpose to seek to smother the third party movement this year; to give all their energies to building up the leftist support for Roosevelt, and then in 1940, if Roosevelt and the Democrats had not given them all they wanted, to launch a third party of which they would be the chiefs and directors. To this end, they proposed a progressive convention to canvass the situation and reach decision on a program their followings would be expected to accept.

But they failed to take Father Coughlin and the leaders like Smith, of the old Long entourage, and Townsend into their councils. These men are now in a fair way to steal their show and to walk off with a considerable part of their support. Their ability to aid Roosevelt is materially impaired.

The Republicans are greatly heartened by the new turn, and a thing has occurred that gives the Democratic convention something to think about.

NEXT, THE DEMOCRATS!
(Ironwood Globe

THERE is no longer any question as to whether James Couzens will again seek the office of United States senator as a Democrat or a Republican. He announced this week that he was entering his name as a candidate for renomination in the Republican primaries and intends to seek renomination and reelection on his record.

That settles everything so far as Republicans are concerned, leaving it to them to choose between Couzens and former Governor Wilber M. Brucker for the nomination. But it leaves the Democratic angle of the senatorial race up in the air. Democrats were hopeful that Senator Couzens would accept their invitation to run as a Democrat. Couzens having declined to do so, it may be inticipated that Democratic candidates will be out in full bloom before long.

So far the Democrats have not seemed to have taken the candidacy of Professor Muyskens of the University of Michigan with any great degree of seriousness. Frank A. Picard, former Democratic chairman of the state liquor commission, is looked upon as the most likely candidate, but even if Picard decided he would like to make the race again, his decision would depend on the decision of Frank Murphy, high commissioner of the Philippines. Both are of the same religious faith and it would not be good politics for both to run.

As late as yesterday, Murphy seemed in a receptive mood to run for the Democratic nomination for governor, a race into which it has been expected he would be drafted by the Democratic bosses in Washington, but his final decision remains to be made. Until Murphy says he will or will not enter the race, Picard's decision will have to be held in abeyance

Your Nation's Affairs

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—The ineradicable yen of the average congressman for a free drink, a free meal, a woman's smile, or a kind word has been saved from frustration.

FATHER COUGHLIN

Seldom do you find all the lobbyists here working for or against a single piece of legislation. But they all ganged up on the bill which would have made lobbyists register themselves, and the House, snapping to attention at its masters' voice, defeated the bill by a whooping majority.

Senator Hugo Black of Alabama, who pushed his bill to regulate the lobbyists through the Senate, says he is philosophical about it, because this was the first time such measure had ever progressed as far as the voting stage in both houses. The House vote, however, was 264 to 77.

The result, of course, is that lobbyists will continue to ply their devious trade, collecting millions for sale of their real or imaginary influence on members of Congress, and the administration, while masked, for the most part, from the gaze of the public, whose interests they usually are sacrificing to special interests and special groups.

—MERRY GAME WILL GO ON—

Democratic political lobbyists who have reaped fortunes during the New Deal spending era will not be required to tell for whom they're working and what they're getting for their efforts. They can look forward to further undisturbed years aboard the gravy boat.

If the Republicans win in November, a new army of lobbyists will find the same old happy hunting grounds.

Lobbyists and friends of the American Federation of Labor, the Townsendites, and the Coughlinites provided the last-minute opposition which gave worried congressmen an excuse for voting down the bill.

The vote was on a conference report which theoretically ironed out differences between the Black bill, passed by the Senate, and the Smith bill, previously passed by the House.

—GIVEN EXCUSE TO VOTE "NO"—

It was alleged that the terms of the bill would require the A. F. of L., the Union for Social Justice, and the Townsend organization to report regularly all contributions and the names of all contributors, which would be an enormous and expensive task.

There was no such provision in the Black bill and Congressman Smith of Virginia insisted there was nothing in his bill or the conference report which would have that effect.

But most members professed, at least, not to believe Smith.

After the vote, when the original Black bill was reported to the House as a Senate amendment, it was hastily tabled without objection.

—DEVIOUS DEALINGS BARED—

The Black and Smith bills made initial headway after such recent disclosures as:

Evidence resulting in estimates that $25,000,000 was spent on lobbying during the first session of the 74th Congress.

Democratic national committeemen cleaning up hundreds of thousands of dollars through sale of real or imaginary influence with Democratic officials.

A lobbyist's offer to get 10 or 15 millions' worth of business for a shipbuilding company in return for $250,000.

A Republican ex-cabinet member's receipt of $100,000 from Associated Gas & Electric Co.

Lobbyists wangling invitations to the White House for clients.

An estimated profit of $20,000,000 by Joe Silverman on 15 years' dealing in army surplus contracts, with assurance from Joe that he had spent "most of $500,000" for "liquor, flowers, and gambling with army officers."

Conviction of a high army officer for receiving a lobbyist's bribe.

Every conceivable form of social, political, and business pressure to make congressmen vote against the holding company bill.

Circulation of fake war scares and discouragement of disarmament and peace gestures by lobbyists for shipbuilding companies seeking big cruiser programs.

Various congressmen sharing apartments and houses with lobbyists.

Secret financing by the du Ponts and other Liberty Leaguers of organizations with various titles engaged in lobbying or propaganda.

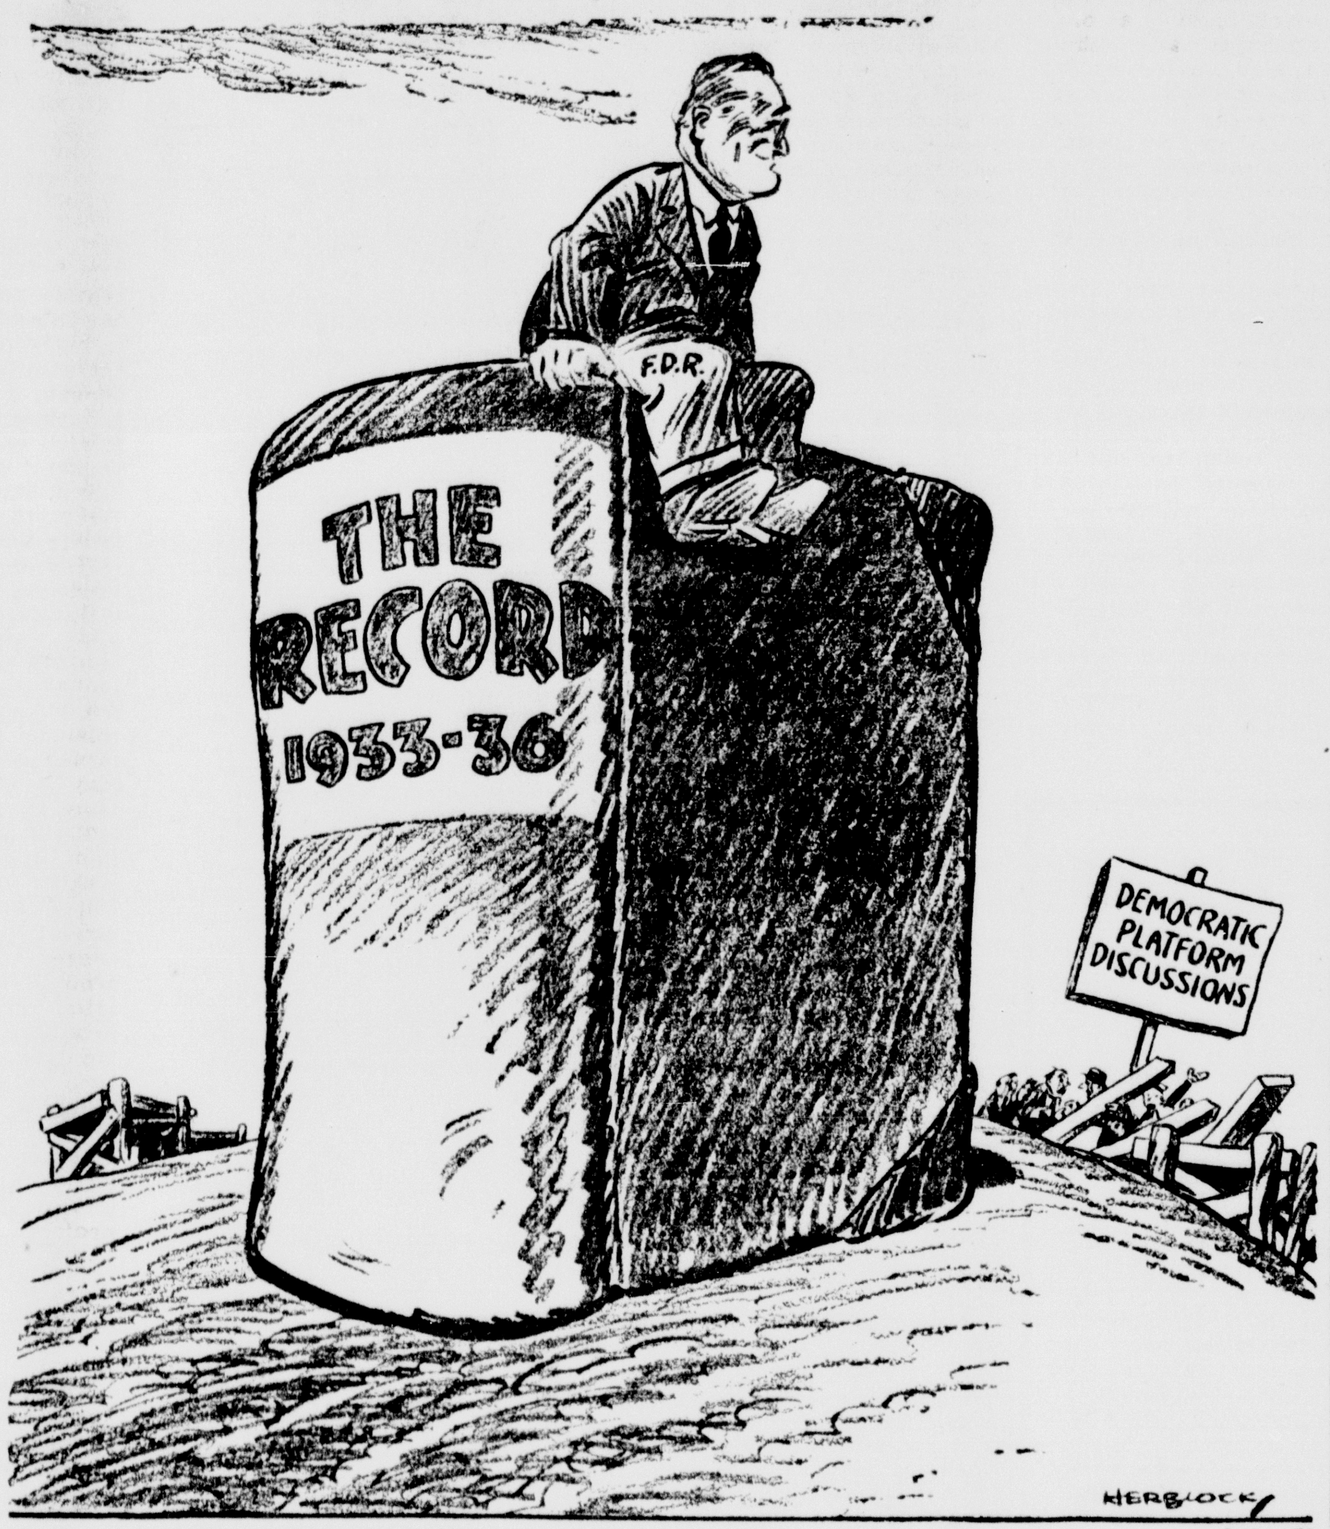
The Platform the People Will Vote For or Against



The Literary Guidepost

BY JOHN SELBY

"SO LONG TO LEARN," by Doreen Wallace; (MacMillan).

A WEEK which produces two such novels as Vincent Sheean's "Sanfelice" and Doreen Wallace's "So Long To Learn" deserves some kind of a special mark. Perhaps a red star.

JOHN SELBY

Miss Wallace's book is an English novel of the soil, but please do not take fright at that. It contains (the worst shall come first!) too much material on the status of English agriculture. Miss Wallace goes deeply into the effect of government on agriculture and such things, into revolts against tithes. She is almost as meticulous as Russian writers of the new regime are when spreading the mechanics of communism upon paper.

But one must admit that some knowledge of all this on the part of the reader is essential to Miss Wallace's purpose, and that she has a real story to tell. The life and struggle of Mary Mayhew is her story.

Mary's family has lived many years as renters on Goosewold farm. Mary's brother has been killed in the war and her sister has married a gentleman according to specification. Mary herself is a born farmer, uncomfortable excepting when striding the fields or helping a sow farrow. She is part of the land, really, so that when the aristocratic owner of the farm finds it necessary to sell and Mary's father decides to quit and live in Suburbia, Mary is desolate.

Her ambitious neighbor, twice her age, offers marriage, and Mary accepts because Edward Bartley is buying Goosewold and marriage with him means staying with the land. It did not occur to her that Edward would want to make a lady out of her—or for that matter that a young ex-service man would take up Tod's Folly, a derelict farm nearby. But he did and he and Mary came to love each other, and their love was sublimated in a most curious way.

This is an unfair synopsis, because Miss Wallace's "plot" is quite trite, and Miss Wallace's novel is a beautiful expression of life in some of its richer and more rewarding aspects. The jacket contains the word "epic." Perhaps it belongs there.

20 Years Ago

Raymond Foster of Garden, formerly of Escanaba, employed as fireman for the Green Bay railroad, received injuries while at work yesterday that resulted in his death an hour later. Foster was engaged in switching at Camp 51, between Garden and Cooks, when in setting out a car on a sidetrack, stumbled in front of the locomotive, which passed over his body.

Robert Brodie of Fairport brought to Escanaba an ancient sword and a portion of its scabbard, recently found buried in the woods near his home.

William Godley has received a call to report to his company with the Wisconsin National Guards for service at the Mexican border.

Active plans were launched for the organization of a Commercial club for the city of Escanaba, with a paid secretary who will devote all his time to the advancement of the community's interests.

MAKING MORE

Not making less for more
    But making more for less
Will ever bring abundance or
    Promote man's happiness.
Each artificial price
    Will shut down some machine
And leave a field to weeds and mice
    That might be rich and green.

Not making less for more
    But making more for less
Will bring the jobs we're waiting for,
    The end of our distress.
If but a few can buy
    What hundreds might enjoy,
The stream of trade will trickle dry
    And few it will employ.

Not making less for more
    But making more for less
To youth will open wide the door
    To honor and success.
Though man experiments
    With matters strange and new,
Just plain old-fashioned common sense
    Will ever bring us through.

New York Column

BY JACK STINNETT

NEW YORK—When better song titles are written, Carl Carmer, who never came any closer to composing a song than hitting the wrong chord on his guitar, will write them.

JACK STINNETT

Unperturbed by the fact that the title of "Stars Fell on Alabama," his fascinating collection of Old South lore, was tacked over a hummable dance ditty without so much as a by-your-leave or thank-you-sir, Carmer has written across the title-page of his new book, "Listen For a Lonesome Drum."

And before the presses were dry on the first printing, there came floating out of Tin Pan Alley notes from at least two song scriveners, perspiring furiously in early summer heat to be first on the music counters with "the latest sensational song hit"—"Listen For a Lonesome Drum."

* * *

CARL CARMER doesn't know why he strikes titles that send the song writers into such a flurry of excitement. He discovered some months ago that there was nothing he could do to prevent the titles being lifted, and so, genial fellow that he is, he dropped his latest plum in the title basket with a good-humored, "There it is, boys, have a go at it if you wish."

But he does know where he gets his titles and the story of "Listen For a Lonesome Drum" is an exciting bit of reporting in his new book.

Carmer was born in up-state New York and his latest work is full of fact and fable collected since infancy plus the last two years of roaming over the whole section.

He spent freezing winter weeks in a lumber camp; wandered for days over the old Tonawanda Seneca reservation with Chief Cornplanter; went hunting rattlesnakes with Bill Clark, who told tall tales with conviction; was present at the unveiling of the statue of Moroni on Cumorah hill, where the Mormon faith had its beginnings; and he chatted with Shakers, Millerites and Caleboguers.

* * *

BUT almost everywhere he went, Carmer came upon the story of the ghost drums . . . a "faraway tattoo" that floats on the "little winds that wander the labyrinth of York State valleys."

In the southern sections, Carmer told us, they say it is the Britisher walking to his death again and tell a story of an English Revolutionary soldier who deserted his army for love of a Yankee girl but was captured and marched up the scaffold to the slow beat of a muffled drum.

In the north, they say it's "Poor Willie," a mad boy, tapping out his insane rhythm on a hill top. An old fisherman described the sound as "drums beneath the water" of Lake Cayuga. And Chief Cornplanter calls them the death drums of his people.

But no matter, the drumbeats are there . . . even the college professors admit that . . . and what is more natural than that a writer, taking his readers to up-state New York, should suggest they listen for a lonesome drum? . . . asks Carl Carmer.

News Behind The News

BY PAUL MALLON

Philadelphia, June 22.—The spirit of this Democratic national convention is not hard to find. The nerve-tearing police siren, which escorts Postmaster General Farley up and down Broad street, shrieks it.

Mallon

What it says is that this is to be a New Deal national fair, a mixture of some carefully prepared political business and a lot of good convention fun. All the third party threats and the unasked counsel of Al Smith's big five will not be permitted to interfere with it.

—BUSINESS—

The tone which is being maintained by the early arriving leaders may be found in the official program of business for Monday. Four events are listed:

10:30 a. m.—Democratic national committee meets to handle a couple of insignificent delegate contests.

3:30 p. m.—Phillies versus St. Louis, National League.

6:30 p. m.—Mayor's dinner to visiting Democratic governors.

9 p. m.—Prize fight, Leroy Haynes vs. Al Ettore.

There is no other business on schedule for Monday.

—RESPONSE—

Postmaster General Farley's running keynotes in press conferences have conveyed more or less the same idea. He arose Sunday and was confronted again with headlines about a congressman named Lemke whose first name was not widely recalled, making what Father Coughlin called "A wide appeal to 25,000,000 voters" as a third party helmsman. Mr. Farley immediately announced he wanted to see the Pirates play in the afternoon. Apparently his main concern was whether that fellow Suhr really deserves to be hitting .357.

Newsmen rushed him later for comment on the telegram from Al Smith et al, counseling the convention to turn away from President Roosevelt and indicating they would vote Republican if it did not. Mr. Farley's only reply was that he had not read the telegram. He got into his car and the wide open sirens of his escort gave the only echo of additional response.

—CONFIDENCE—

On the inside, the tone does not seem to be much different. The real inside of the convention, of course, is at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington. But among the leaders who have so far assembled, and among the platform thinkers who spent the week-end in Atlantic City, in an out of the surf, there was no private tendency to take matters too seriously.

What these boys said in their well ventilated rooms was that they expected the blast from the Smith crowd to be stronger than it was. They wonder if that is all. They thumbed down the list of signers to estimate the political following of each. They concluded that the only one who might sway an appreciable number of votes was Al himself, and they had already counted on him as lost anyway. His following is largely in New England, where their hopes are not high.

—QUESTION—

The Lemke break is another matter. The big boys seem to be confused about it. They cannot tell how serious it will prove to be; how many votes it will poll, or where. Their air of nonchalance about it may be only an air.

Father Coughlin's following is largely in the industrial centers of the East and Central states. If he could sway more than 1,500,000 votes today, most political observer would be surprised. Lemke's following is through the farm belt, and is wholly untested. Townsend's strength now is supposed to center most strongly in Oregon and Maine.

Whether the Long organizer, Gerald Smith, will bring to the combination more than his own vote and a good speaking voice is somewhat doubtful. He did not have much inside influence in the Long organization, except a personal friendship with the Senator. When Long was shot, Smith left Louisiana at once and went home.

What all this adds up to, few Democratic politicos here are willing to guess at. For publication, they will say it may not be serious, but the truth is they do not know.

—CONVENTION BUNTING—

No tears were noticeable in the eyes of arriving congressmen because the Guffey coal substitute bill failed. The politicians wanted it for the effect in Pennsylvania, but most of the legislators feared it.

Mr. Farley is sprucing up for the convention. He has a new dark blue suit which makes him look like a business executive. Also, he seems to have cut down on his gum chewing.

For the mummers' parade Wednesday night, a covered wagon is being prepared. It will burlesque the Landon candidacy.

Among other carnival attractions on the program are: Midget auto races, Tuesday; Mardi Gras, Wednesday; parade, and "frolic at Penn. Athletic club", Thursday; international ice skating carnival, Friday, and water sports on the river, Saturday. On next Sunday there will be a regatta on the Schuylkill.

This is the first convention which ever had a "vice president's headquarters." Placards advertising it hang in the headquarters hotel lobby. It is run by the Texas delegation, which is making no secret of the fact that there is a big fair in Dallas this year.

PUBLIC HEALTH IS CLUB TOPIC

Kiwanis and Lions Hear Michael Kley at Joint Meeting

Recommending a larger expenditure for public health in Escanaba and deploring the "unnecessary deaths" from accidents, Michael Kley, welfare representative of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company of New York, gave an interesting interpretation of the development of public health and progress in the conservation of life before the Kiwanis and Lions clubs at the Delta hotel, Monday evening.

Mr. Kley showed the steady gain in control of smallpox, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, diphtheria, and other contagious diseases. He gave comparative figures for the United States, the state and Escanaba. The practical application of modern methods of public health, he pointed out, has saved many lives, decreased human suffering and made possible great advance in the social welfare of our people.

Expectation Doubled

"It is estimated that expectation of life at birth in the United States in the year 1800 was only thirty years", the speaker declared, in summing up scientific progress in the health realm, "a child born today has a life expectancy of about sixty-one years. In the nation as a whole the expectation of life has been doubled since 1800." This gain of many years has been due largely to the development of public health service, advances in medical science and improved living conditions generally, he said.

Mr. Kley gave an interesting and instructive review of the development of the health movement from the earliest days to the modern standard of community service. Referring to Michigan, he pointed out that deaths from typhoid fever has been reduced to less than one per hundred thousand persons. This drop is largely due to proper filtration and chlorination of drinking water. Measles, diptheria, whooping cough deaths have virtually been eliminated; tuberculosis, which used to be first in the number of deaths, decreased to 41 per hundred thousand persons.

Death Rate Given

The record of deaths in Michigan for all causes is ten per thousand persons. The birth rate for the state is seventeen per thousand population.

Escanaba has a birth rate of 29 per thousand population, the speaker said. The death rate is thirteen per thousand population.

Mr. Kley pointed out that desirable progress has been made in lowering the death rate among younger age groups and that health examination and correction of defects as an integral part of the public school program will do much in building up the health of the future generation.

Health authorities indicate that there has not been such improvement in the middle and advanced ages of life, he said heart disease, cancer, kidney and other diseases of after midlife, afford possible opportunity for more effective health service in the future.

Diseases Take Toll

The speaker gave the following figures for Escanaba for 1935: there were 500 births; 223 deaths. The record included 18 from pneumonia; 17 from cancer; three from tuberculosis; 21 from cerebral hemorrhage; two from kidney diseases; three from diabetes; one suicide and no homicides. The largest toll of deaths was from heart diseases which took 34 lives.

Mr. Kley spoke of the unnecessary deaths from accidents he stated that nearly 100,000 persons were killed in the United States in 1935, about 36,000 in motor vehicle accidents. In Escanaba there were 10 deaths from accidents, three of them due to the automobile.

The speaker stated that Escanaba spent about 21 cents per capita for public health. He pointed out that health authorities indicate a dollar per capita should be appropriated for public health in a city of this size, if the fullest measure of life conservation is to be obtained.

"What do the figures on health and accidents signify?" Mr. Kley asked, in concluding his address. "The answer lies in the opportunity and is within the scope of service of your membership. Informed and intelligent interest on your part, continued support of public health activities in your community encouragement of modern methods of preventive medicine and hygiene, and the spreading of the simple truths to the public, will further help to promote the health and well-being of the people of your city."

No Need for Democrat Convention This Year, David Lawrence Claims

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright 1936, Escanaba Daily Press)

Washington, June 22.—There's really no need for a Democratic National Convention this year—everything that concerns the Democratic party and its leadership can be, and indeed really was, epitomized in the record of the 74th congress which has just adjourned.

President Roosevelt controlled both Houses of congress, which spent $20,000,000,000—the highest amount authorized under any congress in war-time or peace in American history.

Despite assurances given just a year ago by Mr. Roosevelt that his program had reached "substantial completion" and that a "breathing spell is here—decidedly so," as the president expressed it in his letter to Roy Howard, the administration influence was powerful enough to force through into law a tax bill that revolutionizes the tax structure of the nation.

Violated "Breathing Spell"

For many years to come, unless repealed, the new tax on management and prudence, otherwise called the "undistributed surplus tax", will affect the policies of companies, their future credit, and their safety in the event of a business depression.

But the new tax was not the only violation of the spirit and letter of the "breathing spell." The Walsh-Healey bill, enacted in the closing hours of the session, introduces a new aspect of fascism so far as America is concerned. It bestows absolute power in the hands of the executive branch of the government to determine the scale of wages and hours which shall be obeyed by all contractors who furnish articles or equipment to the government in excess of $10,000. Various agricultural products are exempted and the executive is given certain discretion to make exceptions "in specific cases or otherwise when justice of the public interest will be served thereby."

It is a curious inconsistency that the president, who, a few weeks ago, said there was a "no-man's land" prescribed by the Supreme court and that minimum wages could not be fixed, is about to put his signature on an act of congress which undertakes to empower the Secretary of Labor, in cooperation with all other government agencies, to require the payment of certain minimum wages and a limitation on maximum hours of work done for the government.

If the government, of course, can constitutionally compel certain standards of wages on products bought by it, the law can easily be mended to cover, as indeed it was written in the original senate version, all subcontractors as well as all persons furnishing directly or indirectly any supplies to the government. It can be made to embrace, as the senate first proposed, all persons or businesses which directly or indirectly receive grants or loans or benefits of any kind from the federal government. Thus, by prohibiting shipments of freight over railroads that have outstanding loans made by the government, the whole industrial system can be dominated from Washington.

Called NRA Revival

Obviously, a business which makes products needed by Uncle Sam—who spends hundreds of millions annually for supplies—cannot have one set of wages for government work and another for private work. Likewise, the principal contractor can be required in effect to boycott all subcontractors who do not conform.

The Walsh - Healey bill has been called a revival of the NRA. The measure is significant of the unceasing desire of the New Deal to put into effect laws which contain processes that have been declared by the Supreme court to be means to an unconstitutional end.

Another vital piece of legislation known as the Robinson-Patman bill, designed to appeal to those who are politically anti-chain store in their views, may have a disturbing effect on business and in the end give the chains a greater advantage than they have had before. The new law may force large chains to acquire control out-right of producing factories and will injure the independents by making it more difficult for them to get the benefit of quantity discounts than heretofore.

A complete rearrangement of the tax system of the country, the introduction of the fascist principle of government regulation of wages and hours, and the spending of such sums as make the budget more unbalanced than it ever was before is the record of the 74th congress that the forthcoming Democratic convention will ratify.

Nor is the Republican record of opposition too good either. For the Republicans in the senate were asleep last Saturday night when the Walsh-Healey bill was jammed through though it could have been debated and probably would have failed, as did the Guffy Coal bill.

Incidentally, the last 24 hours of congress marked a big victory for William Green, president of the American federation of Labor, and a defeat for his opponent John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers. Mr. Lewis saw his Guffy bill go down to defeat by a well-organized filibuster, but the Walsh-Healey bill, demanded by the A. F. of L., was pushed through successfully.

The Walsh-Healey bill, as finally adopted by both Houses, is much tamer than the measure that passed the senate a year ago, but it opens the way to further government regulation of wages and hours. Under a reactionary administration, labor will be at the mercy of the government bureaucrats. Hence, labor must inevitably participate in politics, and the formation of a labor party some day, as espoused by John Lewis, may be the result.

Clearly, the happenings in congress make the Democratic convention a ratification meeting. For the platform is the record of the New Deal itself and the candidate is the man who exercised more influence on the making of that record by congress than has any other president of the United States on the work of the national legislature.

The New deal convention could just as well be held on the White House lawn in less than a half hour proceeding—for one man dominates the American government today just as one man holds sway in Germany and Italy—a phenomenal demonstration of the fact that the constitution is sufficiently flexible to permit the congress to introduce fascism and then, by concentration of political power, make whatever amendments are necessary in the constitution to ratify the fascist policies that happen to be declared invalid by the Supreme court.

HERBERT TALKS TO WOLVERINES

Urges Clearer Thinking on Conservation Problems

Stressing the need for the greater use of public funds for experimental work in fish and game management and also clearer thinking on conservation problems, Prof. P. A. Herbert, member of the forestry school faculty of Michigan State college, delivered an interesting talk at the dinner meeting of the Wolverine Conservation association at the Sherman hotel last evening.

Herbert pointed out that federal funds are being used extensively for maintaining forest laboratories and agricultural experiment stations, but little is being appropriated for scientific studies of fish and game.

He also described instances of illogical thinking on conservation problems, citing how some persons are quick to arrive at certain conclusions because they have observed certain developments, which may have been merely isolated cases.

The ultimate future of the Upper Peninsula, Herbert said, will be in making the best use of the land. Not all land is suited for agriculture, but much must be used for conservation purposes, such as the production of game and fish, recreation, cellulose and other wood products. He expressed his opinion that many families in the future will derive their livelihood from small subsistence farming, augmenting their income by work at seasonal occupations in the lumbering and recreational industries, and on conservation and forestry projects.

The Michigan conservation department is handicapped by the lack of adequate financing, according to Prof. Herbert, who expressed the conviction that more money should be made available from the general rund. Inability of the conservation department to pay as attractive salaries as the forest service and other governmental agencies has caused many valuable men to leave the employ of the state, he added.

"Is it wise to have moose planted in the Upper Peninsula?" Prof. Herbert asked. Answering his own query, the speaker asserted that it might be that a dangerous hazard has been created for the future. He explained that during the breeding season in November, a bull moose is extremely vicious and has no sense of fear. He mentioned the possibility that these moose might venture upon the open road and attack children walking to and from school.

Prof. Herbert presented other instances, where originally conceived ideas concerning conservation matters have been found to be erroneous after extensive study.

The scheduled election of officers was postponed until a future meeting.

Samuel C. Hamm Sings At Rotary; Reports Are Given

Members of the Escanaba Rotary club were delightfully entertained yesterday with a program of vocal numbers by Samuel C. Hamm, of Mt. Pleasant, Ia., who has been spending his summer vacations in this section for the past 15 years. Mr. Hamm possesses a wonderfully rich baritone voice and the group of songs presented yesterday were thoroughly enjoyed by his audience. The singer's accompaniment was played by Mrs. Julian Pedersen formerly Miss Olio Dewey of this city.

Charles Gessner presented to the club a brief report of the Tenth Rotary district conference, recently held at Rhinelander, Wis., and Carl J. Sawyer reported to the club on plans that are being made for conducting a camp for under-privileged children of this city.

Fair Small Loan Law In Michigan Is Being Sought

An educational campaign is being conducted in advance of the 1937 session of the Michigan legislature to assure the enactment of a fair and reasonable law governing small loan companies, Walter R. Carl, Birmingham, public relations representative of the Household Finance Corporation, said while on a visit here yesterday.

Mr. Carl is a former resident of Escanaba. He was employed in the credit department of the A. J. Kirstin company about fifteen years ago. He spent the week-end visiting with an old-time friend, Clement Bissell.

The present Michigan law fixes a limit of three and a half per cent interest, but Mr. Carl points out that the maximum charged by his concern is two and a half per cent and that it is advocated that the law be amended to stipulate this limitation of the interest rate.

He said that the measures, which were introduced in the 1933 and 1935 sessions of the legislature, would have opened the way for the loan shark to resume operations if either of them had become law.

Stamp News

By I. S. Klein

Design for the proposed Oregon territory commemorative stamp, it is expected, will be a map of what now is Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and parts of Montana and Wyoming. Date of issue probably will be July 13 or 15. Walla Walla, Wash., and Lewiston, Idaho, will be first day cities, and one or two other representative cities may be chosen for first day sales.

* * *

Potato tax stamps will be withdrawn from sale on June 30. The set of 13 stamps totals $5.18. Collectors who want the stamps before their sale is discontinued should address and make out their money orders to the Collector of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C.

• • •

Although an additional printing of the 10-cent airmail stamp of 1926 was discovered in the east recently, specialists believe that the 10, 15, and 20-cent airmails of that year soon will be withdrawn from sale at the Philatelic Agency in Washington, and then will rise in price. Better get a set at face, while you can.

• • •

Another stamp that's being harder to find is the Maryland commemorative, issued first in 1934. And so is the 5-cent airmail of 1928.

• • •

Australia may be the first territory of the British empire to issue a King Edward stamp. Design for the new stamp already has been sent to England for royal approval.

• • •

Greece is preparing a new series of "regular" stamps to last for the next five years. There will be 16 values, and scenes in the history of the country will be depicted.

Republican Women of Two Counties Meet at Luncheon Today; Mrs. Alger Speaker

A luncheon meeting of Republican women of Delta and Schoolcraft counties, at which Mrs. Frederick M. Alger of Detroit, prominent club woman, and a former member of the Michigan State Republican committee, will be guest speaker, will be held this noon at 12:30 o'clock at the Delta hotel.

The meeting is preliminary to the organization of Upper Peninsula branches of the Republican Women's Federation, which has been active in lower Michigan counties for many years.

Over 160 reservations have been made for the luncheon.

On the speaking program with Mrs. Alger will be Attorney Joseph Herbert of Manistique, member of the state central committee; Mrs. Margaret Norton of Rochester, Mich., head of the membership committee of the Federation, who will tell of its activities in the lower peninsula, and Mrs. Thomas Folkner of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., member of the Republican state central committee of the Eleventh congressional district.

The music feature of the luncheon will be a group of songs by Susan C. Semer, gifted concert artist, and her accompaniment will be Mrs. F. M. Fernstrom.

John P. Norton will preside at the luncheon program.

Noted Speaker

Mrs. Alger, a leading figure in state and national affairs, is a speaker of outstanding ability, and her appearance here makes the large gathering of Republican women of the two counties of particular interest. She recently addressed the Jubilee meeting of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau in Menominee, making a special trip to northern Michigan by plane, to be present at the meeting.

Arrangments for the luncheon today are in charge of a general committee of representative women of the two counties: Mrs. J. J. Herbert of Manistique, Mrs. Charles S. Norton of Gladstone, and Mrs. A. N. Wilson of this city, who are cochairmen, and Mrs. George Harvey, Miss Mary McColl, Mrs. G. W. Moll, Escanaba, and Mrs. Fred Mingay, Mrs. William Valind and Mrs. Claude Hawkins, Gladstone.

Elna Granskog Is the Bride Of J. Arthur Mattson

A June wedding of lovely appointments took place Saturday afternoon at Bethel Lutheran church, Stonington, uniting in marriage Elna Irene Granskog, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Granskog of Stonington and J. Arthur Mattson, also of Stonington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mattson.

The ceremony at which Rev. Dr. C. Albert Lund officiated, was performed at 3:30 o'clock.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with ferns and baskets and vases of wild roses and white lilacs, in an effective color arrangement of pink and white.

The Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" was played by Mrs. C. A. Lund, as the bride, escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage, and her attendant, entered the church and proceeded down the aisle to the chancel where the officiating pastor and the bridegroom and his attendant awaited her. Just before the exchange of vows, Miss Lillian Holmgren sang "Because," and during the ceremony she sang "O Perfect Love," Mrs. Lund playing the accompaniments. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used as the recessional. The ring used in the ceremony was held in a crystal dish, lined with pink flowers, and placed on a pedestal near the altar.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white satin and lace, floor length, with long, tight fitting sleeves. Her veil of tulle, trimmed with lace, fell in graceful folds from a pearl beaded cap. She carried a bridal bouquet of white roses and baby breath. Miss Esther Granskog, her sister, who was maid of honor, wore a gown of pale blue taffeta with white accessories and she carried Briarcliffe roses and baby breath. Mrs. Granskog, mother of the bride, wore an ensemble of navy blue silk crepe, with ivory lace trim, and matching accessories, and Mrs. Mattson wore brown crepe with matching accessories. Both held corsages of roses.

Walfred Granskog, a brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom, as best man, and Iver Granskog, also a brother of the bride, ushered.

Reception at Church

A reception, attended by thirty-five guests, was held in the parlors of the church following the ceremony, and a wedding supper for members of the bridal party was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Strom in Escanaba. A color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the decorations for both affairs, in arrangement of wild roses and white lilacs.

Mr. and Mrs. Mattson left on a honeymoon trip through the east, after which they will establish their residence in Stonington. The bride's traveling costume was a blue suit with which she wore a red fox scarf and matching accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Central State Teachers' college, Mt. Pleasant, Mich., and has been teaching in Rapid River for the past six years. Mr. Mattson, who was formerly a resident of the Copper Country, is a carrier in the United States Postal Service.

Guests at the wedding included Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Lund and Miss Lillian Holmgren of Escanaba, and Miss Elsie Prill of Milwaukee.

Meeting Tonight

The housing committee of the Green Bay district Luther League convention will meet at the Bethany Lutheran church parlors at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

Training Course Planned By WPA

Due to lack of help the WPA recreational division cannot supply supervisors for all the playgrounds in Escanaba. Therefore they are asking for volunteers. Any young girl or women interested in recreation work will be given a special short course in playground supervision and how to conduct games.

The need for efficient recreation leaders is growing yearly and this course will be valuable to those who enter. Their services will also be valuable to the recreation division in Escanaba.

It is urged that all playgrounds should be properly supervised and by getting interested young people to offer their services is the only way this can be done at present.

Anyone wishing to enter this class is asked to call Zania Rivers, phone 1568-J, and register. The classes will start as soon as sufficient numbers have registered. As soon as the course is finished they will be placed on the different playgrounds and beach throughout the city.

Theatres

AT THE DELFT

Based on "The Suicide Club" by Robert Louis Stevenson, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Trouble for Two" opened an engagement of three days at the Delft theatre Sunday night, co-starring Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell.

The picture has been so cleverly produced from the Stevenson narrative that it distinctly thrilled an audience which was liberally composed of Stevenson's admirers.

AT THE MICHIGAN

Samuel Goldwyn's new production, "These Three," which brought Miriam Hopkins, Merle Oberon and Joel McCrea to the Michigan theatre Sunday night, proved the most powerful and gripping drama to reach the screen in many a cinema season.

Offering all three stars the acting opportunities of their lives, brilliantly concocted by Lillian Hellman, famous Broadway playwright, magnificently produced, and expertly directed by William Wyler, "These Three" held last night's audience breathless from the opening shot to the final fadeout.

A strip of "cotton road" laid in South Carolina 10 years ago, and exposed to usual traffic conditions, has required no repair attention and still is in excellent condition.

Flynn Dissects Vexing Platform Problems That Face Democrats

The difficult problems the Democratic party will face in framing a platform at the Philadelphia convention are outlined in this forecast story by John T. Flynn, famed author-economist, writing for NEA Service and Daily Press. Flynn shows the intricate task confronting party leaders in satisfying demands of the many voting elements to which they will appeal for support. He will write an analysis of the platform after the convention, as he did of the Republican document after the Cleveland conclave.

Now the Democrats go about the business of fashioning a platform. If you will remember that a platform is something to run an and not to stand on, you will be able to make a pretty good guess what it will be.

Flynn

You must remember, furthermore, that the Democrats do not have to win votes, but merely hold them. This being so, it is not likely that the platform will be bold. It will be just good enough to hold fast to the many groups already in the corral.

It will also have to keep its eye on Congress—for the president needs not only his own election, but a good-sized majority in Congress to enable him to manage.

The Republicans, so far as the platform is concerned, put their trump cards in the preamble, bristling with denunciation of the New Deal. The Democrats will also have some trump cards to show, either in a preamble or elsewhere in the platform.

Their highest cards will be: (a) to picture the nation in collapse as the Republicans left office; (b) to acclaim Roosevelt's heroic activities in the face of the disaster; (c) to point with pride to the recovery which has blessed the market-place under the beneficent rule of the Democrats.

WOO "LITTLE FELLOWS"

The elements which the Democrats will woo for votes will be the workers, farmers, all those business groups which liked the NRA because of price-fixing and trade practice rules, small investors, and the millions on relief.

The groups they will fear will be big business, the utilities, the bankers, taxpayers as a class on one side, and on the other side the Townsendites, the Share-the-Wealthers, the National Union for Social Justice followers—that is, the disciples of Townsend, Long, and Coughlin.

Then there is another group—convinced liberals and near radicals—who feel that Roosevelt has betrayed the liberal cause. The platform makers will have to decide how much they are willing to say or concede to get votes out of these groups.

The chief difficulty in the platform job will be the platform of 1932. Many ghosts out of that document will rise to haunt the resolutions committee.

There will be the president's vigorous demand for a balanced budget, drastic reduction of government expenses by at least 25 per cent, sound currency, and a tariff for revenue only, strict enforcement of the anti-trust laws, and condemnation of the use of money in political campaigns.

COURT BAN IS PROBLEM

The next difficulty will be to take a position on all the measures of the New Deal which have collapsed, without at the same time denouncing the supreme court. The record of collapsed or abandoned policies is amazing—the NRA, the Guffey Act, the AAA, to name but a few.

The simple truth is that the administration adopted a series of policies which the supreme court has now definitely held cannot be employed by the federal government. If this be so, then what policies will the government offer in their stead?

Here the Democrats are going to have to tread softly and cautiously and use weasel words, as the Republicans did when they talked about money. This trouble is going to plague them as they talk about extravagance, the Constitution, and money.

Many of these difficulties will be difficulties of composition. But there may be some which will come from groups with strong views on various topics. In this latter class, of course, will be the ancient plague of American conventions—money.

MONEY PLANK PUZZLER

It will be indeed interesting to see the money plank which the Democrats turn out. There are, of course, far more money "experts" in the Democratic party than in the Republican.

The silver senators are mostly Democrats now. But the managed currency people have always been able to muster a majority in the House. Senator Thomas of Oklahoma is sure to be on hand, as will Representative Goldsborough of Maryland, with a demand for a money plank that suits their ideas.

Of course this year the Democrats will be able to borrow and use the old Republican steamroller. But after all it is a Democratic convention and Democrats are notoriously hard to handle.

In 1904 the Parker people had the convention sewed up tight. This didn't prevent a tremendous row on the money question, which wasn't even an issue then. But of course William J. Bryan was living then and there is no William J. Bryan among the Democrats now.

MUST BACK GOLD MOVE

The platform will have to endorse the president's abandonment of gold redemption, devaluation, as well as putting the power of valuation in the president's hands. It may use some weak words about stabilization when Europe's conditions make that possible.

It certainly will try to escape saying anything definite about managed currency. If it does, when the whole job is done, there will be no great difference from the Republican platform.

Yet everyone knows that the two parties are oceans apart on money. The truth is that on this subject both platforms will be meaningless. The voter will just have to take the two parties as he knows them—the Republican party as the representative of the propertied interests, the Democratic party as the representative of the debtor interests.

As the next four years roil around, both parties will shape their policies without regard to their platform declaration and in accordance with their support of these two great divergent interests.

TRUST PLANK IS BOGEY

There is going to be trouble with that anti-trust plank. The NRA was a complete overthrow of Democratic policy on trust laws. Since its annulment, the party has played with the Guffey Act, another complete denial of its old anti-trust policy.

The Guffey Act has been held unconstitutional but the desire, of the president to move in that general direction is known. No man can make an honest declaration against monopolies and support these measures.

Besides the Department of Justice under Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings has done nothing against the trusts. In charge of the trust division is a notorious critic of the anti-trust act. This is a dangerous subject.

There are senators like Black of Alabama who are bitterly against the administration's record on this business. The administration will have to use its suppressive power to keep out a fight on an anti-trust plank.

The Constitution, of course, is going to be soft-pedaled. The Constitution, as Judge Hughes once said, is what the supreme court makes it. As it stands, therefore, it makes all application of the president's so-called planned economy impossible.

F. R. DUCKS ISSUE

But the president is clearly afraid of that issue. Last week he said the Constitution was good enough for him. There will, therefore, be no constitutional amendment plank unless the force comes from someone else.

But the supreme court is not good enough for the president. He undoubtedly believes the best way to handle that thorn is to wait until one or more of the justices depart in the next four years. A new appointment would help, but not much.

After all, the president may lose one of his own supporters on the bench. And we may remember that the NRA was declared illegal unanimously and that the Guffey Act and the AAA were thrown out by a 6 to 3 verdict.

The president would have to get two appointments and they would have to be on the right side of the court to help him a little there.

There will be various minor scraps about minor planks, but aside from money, the trust laws, and perhaps the Constitution, no major row appears on the horizon now. We may be treated to the spectacle of a quiet, tranquil, perfectly disciplined Democratic convention.

E&LS FILES POOL PROTEST

Railroad Requests Oral Argument in Case Before ICC

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C.—Fighting for its life, the Escanaba and Lake Superior railroad company filed late exceptions to the examiner's report recommending the granting of the Milwaukee railroad's application to abandon ore transportation over its tracks, stating the report was erroneous and demanding oral argument on the case, it was learned today at the interstate commerce commission.

Oral argument on the case was granted by the ICC officials, who stated the date would be set later. Although the exceptions were received on June 18, the day after the limit set for their reception, ICC officials accepted them as they had been delayed in transit.

Requesting the oral argument, the E & L S asked that the ICC refuse the Milwaukee application because the ore carrying pool arrangement had not been agreed to by all the carriers involved, because it would not be in the public interest, and because the Milwaukee had not established that it would save by the arrangement.

"The E & L S railroad company, whose very life is threatened and whose usefulness as a common carrier will be impaired by the granting of the application, respectfully urges that the Commission will reject the recommendations in the proposed report of the examiner; and that a new report will be drawn, or the proposed report modified, so that the decision and the order of the Commission shall deny the application," the Escanaba railway asserted.

ICC officials said they would give careful consideration to the statement of the Escanaba railway that the examiner's report was not entirely accurate.

"The proposed report fails to state the facts and the contentions of the protestants and objectors against the proposed pooling arrangement accurately and fully; and in that regard the report is erroneous in various particulars," the E & L S stated.

During and after meals, Camels bring a sense of well-being and good feeling. That's why people say:

Camels stimulate digestion in a pleasant, natural way . . . increase alkalinity

The human digestion responds unfavorably to nervousness and strain. It is definitely encouraged by smoking Camels.

Scientific studies show clearly the manner in which Camels aid digestion. Using sensitive apparatus, it is possible to measure accurately the increase in digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids—that follows the enjoyment of Camel's costlier tobaccos.

For a cheery "lift" and for digestion's sake, enjoy Camels. They never get on your nerves. They are gentle on your throat. You'll like the firmness of Camels too—no loose shreds annoy you.

CHAPTER IV

"You've saved my life," she answered. "Of course I'll come. What time?"

She glanced up, straight into the eyes of a young man a waiter was ushering to their table.

"Bob!" she cried, and a dimple at the corner of her lips flashed provocatively. To conceal the tumult within she spoke lightly, "Imagine seeing you in Paris!"

As casually as though he had said good night a few hours before, Bob greeted Marcia, met Camilla and Phil, joined them, and talked of the crowded boat train, the smooth crossing. As naturally as though he had been expected, he accepted an invitation to join the party for the evening. Marcia, watching curiously, realized that she wasn't surprised. Somehow she had been expecting him.

This should have been their first night in Paris together. They were in Paris—that was all.

When Phil and Camilla left them alone for a little while, Bob smiled quietly. He seemed older, or maybe he was merely tired. "Why did you do it, Marcia, honey?" he asked.

"Scatterings weren't enough, Bob."

"I love you." He smiled, and when he smiled his face was warm and bright, and Marcia felt her heart stir restlessly. She wanted to believe him again, and she mustn't want to. These three words were a sesame he had used many times to many girls, of course! He had said, "I love you and Marcia and half a dozen other girls." She had put an ocean between them and he could not span it with three small words.

"I was a darned fool, Marcia," Bob's low, melodious voice pleaded. "Speaking that rot about a job. I don't blame you a bit. Only you might have warned me. You were within your rights to walk out when I made a jackass of myself."

"Let's skip it," his former fiancee answered. "We might pretend we aren't engaged and it's fun to be together. As for anything else, Bob—I don't know!"

But she wanted to say: "If you want me, prove your love, Bob! Prove it as the knights who gathered golden apples or climbed glass hills to get their princesses!' But this was the twentieth century when men talked of economic pressure and the short duration of both war and ecstacy. Love was sweet and light and brittle. So she put her slim hand on Bob's arm and said, "I'll see you at dinner at 7."

"I won't rush you, Marcia. Marry me when you get ready. But please get ready!" His smile was rueful and imploring. "Mind if I stick around, though? You seem to matter a lot."

He did not mention the confusion that had followed the canceled wedding and Marcia was grateful that he didn't.

Now, half an hour later, Marcia was dressing with unusual care. Her evening frock was of blue taffeta and large white flowers gave the impression of having been blown against it in a madcap wind. The eqaulet shoulders and flaring skirt emphasized the slimness of the waist that was girded in dark blue velvet. Her slippers were of the same dark velvet and there was a little silver cape to match the dress. When three orchids arrived without a card Marcia pinned them on her shoulder, knowing that Bob had sent them.

"See here, Marcia Cunningham," she warned her mirrored reflection. "You can't go haywire! Maybe the man did miss you—so what? Maybe he hated to face the social mob again without proving he had bagged his game. Oh, what's the use? He gets under your skin and you know it!"

The evening was gay. It was late when they came to Zeni's, the mecca for Americans who want to laugh and talk and dance the new day in.

"There are gigolos and hostesses," Count Von Wormstedt explained. "The telephone on each table is a curious device. You can call any other table in the room. I'll get Rosita for us."

Rosita was slim and dark with black lacquered hair and red lacquered fingernails. When she danced, her bright red skirts made a merry whirl and her silver-clad feet scarcely touched the floor.

"You never have danced with a gigolo?" she asked Marcia when someone pointed out the paid dancing partners. "Oh, but you must. I'll go get Pierre. You'll like Pierre!"

She was gone for some time. Marcia was sure that she had forgotten her promise and was glad. Paying a man for a dance was a little disgusting. But eventually Rosita returned with a tall, dark Frenchman who bowed very low and danced very well. He began to hold her too closely and she tried to move away. When she did he laughed a little. Someone was taking flashlight pictures and attention was turned on the photographer. Advertisements, or Sunday news pictures, Marcia guessed. She hoped that the camera would miss her and this—this gigolo. Then, as though taking advantage of the fact that all attention was centered elsewhere, Pierre bent over, and kissed her on the lips—long, hard, unyieldingly. She broke away with a little scream.

Nobody heard. The flashlight was doing its stunt and the sound was lost. She ran back to the table, her face white and her eyes blazing. She was glad that Pierre did not come back to her but she heard him asking for his francs from Bob a little later.

Pierre left her alone after that when they went to Zeni's. Rosita came often to the table. Bob danced with her a few times, and Marcia resented the way that his dark head bent to her dark one. Bob would be chivalrous always. She wanted him to be. He was quite as attentive, maybe more so, to Camilla. That was good.

• • •

But Marcia did not think often of Rosita and Pierre. It was late spring in Paris, a radiant spring with a painted blue sky, parks that were clothed in verdant velvet, trees that hung their leaves, full and heavy, on the scented air. It was spring and there were flowers on the street corners and music in the air. Together the four of them, joined occasionally by Jimmy, who was Count Von Wormstedt, went to the haunts of Paris. Seven moons slid down the sky. The trees in the Luxemburg Garden turned to an enchanted green. The group went to the Bois and watched the swans float on the cool black water. They visited the shops along the Rue de la Paix. Sitting in the dining room of the hotel one night her bright hair radiant against the cool green of her frock, Marcia missed Phil.

"His chief's in town and he's having dinner with him," Camilla explained. "Phil has a new idea he has worked out."

"It's strange without him," she answered. "Not quite complete.'

Bob glanced at her, then glanced away, but he studied the stem of a tall goblet. A little sorry, Marcia slipped one hand into his and he held it in strong fingers. The orchestra was beginning again.

"Shall we dance?" Bob held out his arms. The melody was one of which they had danced often to the roofs of Manhattan, at hotels along the ocean and on crowded floors of night clubs where one went after the theater to talk in an atmosphere too noisy to even think. Memories of all these places came together to make a path to carry them back somewhere.

"'Lovely lay, I'm falling madly in love with you!'" The musicians sang the melody through trumpet and clarinet and banjo.

"I am," Bob said. "Can't we excuse ourselves and leave? I want to tell you about it."

So Marcia got her cloak, the silver wrap that matched her bag and bracelets, and they found a cab and went rolling across the town, as though romance were something that they would discover together. They dismissed the carriage at Montmartre. Music, sweet as though it had been strained of all harshness, rich and full as though the refining seive had not compressed it, came from a low, dark building.

Bob led the way inside, and they found chairs in a darkened room where there were many people who sipped sherry and listened to music. As her eyes grew accustomed to the darkness, Marcia distinguished faces. There was a profile of a cameo clearness—dark hair looped over the ears—a bright frock. It was Rosita! The musicians were playing softly so she did not call Bob's attention to the girl. He would have smiled and let it go, she knew. Because she loved him again for that minute—because she did not know if the minute would last for 60 seconds or 60 years—wanted to know and didn't—she moved a little closer, and Bob put a strong hand around her hands as they lay in her lap.

"Ready?" he said when the song was done, and they came again into the sweet, dark night, and walked to a little park, nearby, where the silhouette of a new church was slim and black in the sky. Paris lay far below. Marcia leaned across a wooden railing, at one side of the park, and saw that steps led to Paris, far below.

"Let's walk down," she said, and held out her hand.

"Just a minute." Gently Bob swung her around until she faced him. "I promised to let you take your time. But I have to know, Marcia. What are you going to do about us?"

She turned back, her thoughts still lost in the music, not knowing clearly what her answer would be. Suddenly a girl's laughter was very near.

"Slumming in Montmartre? Isn't it a beautiful, beautiful night? I came for a breath of fresh air."

Bob turned swiftly and his brows were drawn in impatience. "Oh, Rosita. Good evening. Not alone?"

"I have an escort—in there." She motioned to the low, dark building.

"We were just going," Bob answered. "Marcia wants to try these steps."

"Oh, yes?" Rosita's laughter broke into flurried little bells. "But it will make you so tired! Remember how long it took the night we walked down, Bob?"

In the semi-darkness Marcia saw Bob's eyes narrow and the swift step he took toward Rosita.

"It must have been some other man, Rosita. I've never been here with you."

"Oh, no? Then how did you know where to come?"

"I came with Jimmy one night after you girls had gone to bed. But see here, I'm not answering anybody's catechism. You're a nice little girl, Rosita, but run along. Beat it."

Rosita stood with her hands crossed in front of her. "Anyway, we were very tired when the steps ended, my darling, and we came home with the dawn. Now I must go back."

Alone again, Bob caught Marcia to him. "You don't believe her, do you? It's made up, though the devil knows why. She's wooing money and what she sees in my pockets—"

He stopped short and Marcia knew that he, too, was recalling

MGR. TELLS OF WPA PROGRAM

Outlines Present Jobs, Projects Planned for Next Winter

A picture of the WPA program carried out this far in Gladstone and an idea of projects that are contemplated in the future was presented by City Manager E. H. Waterhouse yesterday before the Gladstone Rotary club.

Last August 24 projects were set up in a program which could be carried out at an expenditure of $415,000, $300,000 of which was to be furnished by the WPA for labor and the remainder by the city of Gladstone.

Projects were approved and everything in readiness to start on WPA with the close of the ERA but men were idle and on direct relief from Labor Day until early in November when the first quota were placed to work.

Governmental red tape has slowed not only the start but completion of many of the projects, it was stated. As an example, the city manager pointed to the Dakota avenue paving started June 5 after getting approval from Lansing only to have district inspectors from the office at Iron Mountain close the job the same day it was started. Now there is no chance of doing the work until the new program starts in July.

Six paving projects are slated to be carried out when the new program goes into effect. Consolidation of the projects into one will probably be effected before the work is started. It is believed that all paving will be done before fall.

Touching on prospective projects for next winter, Manager Waterhouse said the list that he would recommend included a Minneapolis avenue sewer, a water main in a section of Superior avenue, resumption of the breakwater project, removal of street car rails, razing of boiler house, construction of municipal garage and possibly a receiving vault at the cemetery.

RODEO IS NEW 4TH FEATURE

Riding, Roping Spectacle Will Be Treat for Big Visiting Crowds

A real Western style rodeo entertainment has been secured by the Fourth of July committee as an added attraction in the big celebration of the nation's Independence Day which will be staged in Manistique on July Fourth. The program, providing a full day of activity is expected to draw a large number of visitors from a hundred mile radius as well as townspeople.

The rodeo program will be staged in front of the grandstand at the county fairgrounds. Eight or more daring riders will stage a thrilling exhibition of horsemanship and kindred accomplishments that are a traditional part of that peculiarly American industry of cattle handling.

Among the stunts that are scheduled to bring hair-raising thrills to a large throng of spectators are the riding of bucking horses, bulldogging steers, bucking steers, a relay race on horse back and jumping horses. Exhibitions of single and double roping and whip cracking will also be given.

The usual programs of street sports, band concerts and the big Fourth of July parade with floats and decorated cars will combine to make a day to be remembered as one of the red letter variety in Manistique history. The final feature of the day's program will be a mammoth display of beautiful fireworks, far surpassing anything seen here in many years.

BY FRANK MAC MILLEN
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, June 22 (AP)—The stock market today voted strongly for industrial specialties, pushing many up fractions to around 4 points.

Chrysler led from start to finish, ending with a gain of 3 3-8 points at 104 5-8, a new 6-year top. A number of other high marks were registered.

Business news supplied the principal stimulation for individual issues. In addition to Chrysler, brokers said several of the leaders apparently responded to expectations that the passage of the much-debated tax bill by congress will bring a distribution of large surpluses as increased dividends.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks stepped up .9 of a point to 64.7, or only .1 of a point under the year's jeak. The industrial index made a new 1936 high with a gain of 1.2 points at 86.6. The average recovery of the rails and utilities was only about haft that of the industrials. Transfers totalled 985,510 against 828,280 Friday.

The adjournment of congress seemingly was a minor market factor. Politics kept the boardrooms buzzing, but it was said to be questionable if the presidential campaign thus far has affected equities much one way or the other.

Good Business News

On the cheerful side was the estimate of the American Iron & Steel Institute that mill operations currently were up .2 of a point to 70.2 percent of capacity. This is 1 point under the best level since 1930, established last April. U. S. Steel was up 5-8 at 64 3-8 and Bethlehem improved as much at 54¾.

J. I. Case pushed ahead 5 points at one time on short covering and buying based on optimistic earnings predictions. It closed with a net advance of 2½ at 183½. Owens-Illinois on a small turnover held a gain of 5½ at 151½. Douglas Aircraft jumped 3 points to 61 on reports of profitable manufacturing operations. The other aviations issues were only slightly improved.

Outstanding gainers included Crown Cork at 62 3-8, Anaconda at 35 1-8, Montgomery Ward at 45¾, American Telephone at 169½, National Supply at 43¾, Westinghouse at 118, Johns-Manville at 104, Du Pont at 150 1-8, Columbia Carbon at 126, Allied Chemical at 200, Youngstown Sheet & Tube at 66 3-8, Santa Fe at 79 and Delaware & Hudson at 41 5-8.

General Motors, second to Chrysler as the most active stock of the day, firmed 7-8 at 66 3-8. Bonds were steady. Foreign gold currencies moved against the dollar in early dealings, but fell back later when French sailors struck at Marseille and hoisted the red flag over their ships.

Wheat, backward in the morning, rallied to finish up 1-8 to 1 3-8 cents a bushel. Corn, however, was off 3-8 to 1¼. Cotton held advances of 25 to 45 cents a bale.

BY G. A. PHILLIPS
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, June 22—A few industrial issues scored sharp gains in the bond market today.

Gould Coupler 6s were up 6¼ at 82¼, International Mercantile Marine 6s jumped 3 to 75 and Studebaker convertible 6s rose 2 3-8 to 99 7-8. Parmelee Transportation 6s slumped 1 3-8 to 66.

In the foreign section, Italians ran forward for gains of fractions to a point or more, although the rise was less uniform than last week. Buying was prompted by the outlook for cancellation by the League of Nations of sanctions against Italy, investment circles said.

American & Foreign Power 5s rose a point but bumped into selling and finished unchanged at 78. American Water Works 6s were fractionally higher at 109¾.

U. S. government obligations ended 2-32 lower to 4-32 higher with gains predominant. The treasury 2¾s of 1945 at 103 19-32 and the 2 7-8s at 102 2-32 were among the risers. The 3s of 1951 were off 2-32 at 104 9-32.

The Associated Press carrier average was 0.1 higher at 92.6, and the foreign average was up 0.2 at 70.1.

Transactions totaled $7,829,000, par value, against $7,945,000 Friday, of which $540,000 were governments compared with $340,000 on Friday.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, June 22—Despite 2½ cents a bushel temporary tumble, wheat rose with surprising strength late today, equaled the season's high price record, and closed at net gains.

The late upturn of values accompanied trade reports that scattered moisture received northwest over the week-end is neither heavy enough nor general enough to brighten to a material degree the black outlook for spring wheat yields this side of the Canadian border. On the other hand, price rallies at Winnipeg were feeble in contrast with those of American markets, and some pit experts were pointing out that in view of six weeks remaining before the Canadian harvest, Canada may yet reap a bumper crop.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsettled, 1-8 to 1 3-8 above Saturday's finish, July 95 to 95 1-8, September 95 3-4 to 95 7-8, December 97 3-8 to 97½, corn 3-8 to 1¼ down, July 65 5-8 to 65 3-4, September 64 1-8 to 64¼, December 59 7-8 to 60, oats ¼ to 3-4 off, September 30 1-8 to 30¼, and rye ¼ to ½ up, September 64 3-8 to 64½. The outcome in provisions was unchanged to 10 cents lower.

Highest prices of the day for wheat in Chicago, 96 cents September delivery, were reached asthe day drew to an end. Liberal profit-taking sales then, however, caused some reaction.

Corn and oats prices sagged because of timely moisture in the corn belt. Rye paralleled wheat action.

Provisions took their cue mainly from corn market weakness.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—July 92 5-8 to 92 3-4, 97¼ to 97½; September 93 5-8 to 93 3-4, 89½ to 89 5-8; December 95 3-8, 1.00 to 1.00 1-8. Corn—July 64½, 67 1-8 to 67¼; September 62 7-8 to 63, 66; December 58 3-4 to 58 7-8, 61 3-8 to 61½. Rye—July 62 5-8, 65½; September 62½, 67; December 64 5-8, 67 3-4.

Washington Oarsmen Make Sweep at Regatta

HUSKIES FIRST IN ALL EVENTS

Varsity Crew Forced to Come from Behind for Victory

BY ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 22 (AP)—Coming from behind with a killing spurt to whip California's three-time champions in the four-mile varsity race, the University of Washington's mighty oarsmen completed a dazzling sweep of the intercollegiate championship regatta this evening in a history making performance.

The huskies from far off Seattle scored three smashing victories over America's foremost college crews as the far west absolutely dominated the Hudson river for the second successive year.

The blistering, rip-roaring drive that carried Washington's great varsity boatload to triumph over the Golden Bears and five eastern rivals followed two decisive preliminary triumphs.

The husky freshmen, capturing the two mile opener for the third straight year, out-rowed California, with four eastern crews beaten off. The three mile junior varsity race saw Washington score for the second straight year by coming from behind to subdue Navy and romp off with a sensational four length decision.

Fourth Since 1926

Washington's blazing set of triumphs, achieved under nearly perfect conditions and witnessed by a crowd of upwards of 50,000 spectators, not only ended California's varsity reign but marked thte first sweep any college has scored since 1912, when Cornell captured all three races on the Poughkeepsie program.

That was back in the days when the junior varsity race was a four-oared event so that Washington now has the distinction of being the first to sweep the river in all eight-oared competition, dating from 1914.

The varsity victory that made it a perfect evening for the magnificent fleet from the Pacific northwest was Washington's fourth in the blue-ribbon since the war but the first for the Huskies since 1926. Just ten years ago they triumphed over the Navy in a memorable race in which they were stroked him by big Al Ulbrickson, now the head coach of the Huskies.

California's Golden Bears, victorious in 1932, 1934 and 1935 in the varsity race, didn't give up without a struggle. Pointing for their third straight Olympic campaign, the Bears fought their way into the lead, with only the last mile to go, after a thrilling duel for the pacemaking role with the Navy. At that point it was a three-cornered race, with the rest of the varsity fleet beaten off, but neither California nor the Navy had the finishing speed and power to match Washington's tremendous closing drive.

his own phase about marriage for financial advancement.

The magic had been shattered. The steps were too long. Marcia was tired suddenly.

"Let's talk about it tomorrow. After all, if you wanted to bring her here, why not? We're not engaged."

"But I tell you I didn't—don't you believe me, Marcia?"

"I want to believe you—dreadfully! And I can't!"

There was a silence then. Young, tense, sharp. It lasted all the way to the hotel.

"You needn't believe me, of course," Bob said then, "but Jimmy will be a witness that he took me there."

"It doesn't matter, one way or the other." Marcia knew that her face was pale and her hands were trembling. She loved him! It swept over her blindingly. If she didn't, he couldn't hurt her like this! "Any mail, please?" she asked the clerk, to break the silence with Bob.

The clerk bowed and held out two letters. Wenda's return address was in the corner of one. Safe in her own room, with the wind blowing across the wide floor and the bed turned down, Marcia opened the letter and began to read:

"Marcia, my dear, I know you want to know what happened at the wake that followed your going, so I'll not waste time on inquiring about the state of your nerves and how you are coming along with the paste-pot and a lot of broken illusions. Here I go!"

ROCK SPARTANS TRIM 'STIQUE

Two Run Rally in Eighth Is Deciding Point; Score, 14-12

Rock, Mich., June 21.—A two run rally in the eighth inning broke a 12-12 deadlock and gave the Rock Spartans a 14-12 victory over Manistique in the highest scoring game of the season played here today.

The game was a slugfest, no less than seven pitchers taking part in the slaughter, four for Rock and three for Manistique. Manistique opened the first inning with two runs which Rock matched in their half of the frame. Manistique stepped up the pace in the second with three more runs but Rock again countered with three. Manistique scored three more in the third but Rock went ahead with five in their half of the frame. The visitors added another four in the first of the fourth to take the lead while Rock countered with one. Those runs proved to be Manistique's last, however, and the Spartans tied it up again in the seventh with one score and won the game in the eighth.

Bowers, of Manistique, and Rabideau, of Rock, led their respective teams with four hits each.

Boston Bees Beat Tex Carleton, 5-1

Boston, June 22 (AP)—The Boston Bees turned back their nemesis, Tex Carleton, for the second time in three years today and whipped the Chicago Cubs 5 to 1 in the opener of a four-game series. Wally Berger, Boston outfielder, starred with a home run.

Carleton had beaten the Boston club 14 out of 15 times since the start of the 1934 season and today's victory offered plenty of encouragement to followers of the ambitious Bees. The last time Boston boasted a triumph over the Texan was May 21, 1935.

Berger, who smashed out a homer in the ninth inning yesterday to give Boston a victory over the Cincinnati Reds, started the blasting today with a home run—his ninth of the season—on the first ball pitched to him in the opening inning. His home run went to the left field bleachers after Rightfielder Gene Moore had singled and Bucky Jordan had walked.

SPILLING the DOPE

BY JOHNNY INKSLINGER

In no event in the Olympic games is the United States more certain of victory than in the two sprint distances of 100 and 200 meters.

The trio of ebony antelopes, Jesse Owens, Ralph Metcalfe, and Eulace Peacock, gives Uncle Sam an array unmatched by any other country.

It is doubtful if anyone can keep them off the team in the final trials at Randalls Island Stadium, New York, July 10-11.

Owens of course, generally is recognized as our chief reliance, due to his remarkable feats of the last two years. But Connie Jennings, astute Marquette mentor, who tutors Metcalfe since that former Golden Avalanche star left school, states that big Ralph is in the best shape of his career, and should beat Owens.

The slim Jesse, it should be remembered, isn't built to be in his best shape after a season of strenuous campaigning. Peacock took his measure last year in the century and broad jump after a busy indoor season had sapped the Buckeye's strength.

—o—

Scholastic difficulties kept Owens off the boards last winter, but he has been plenty busy so far this summer, and may be trained down too fine unless he rests considerably before the final trials.

Metcalfe, veteran of the 1932 Olympic squad, who finished behind Eddie Tolan in the 100 meters, and third in the 200 behind Tolan and George Simpson, may have the edge on young Jesse in international competition, but opposition such as Ralph and Peacock can offer may be just the tonic the Cleveland comet needs to break the existing Olympic standards of 10.3 in the 100 and 21.2 in the 200 meters.

While these three men represent the first flight of talent in the United States, a second group probably could hold its owns with the world's best dash men.

—o—

Despite this preponderance of talent, however, the Yankee dash men should heed a word of warning—the greatest sprinters we ever sent to the Olympics had the habit of eating dust—Frank Wykoff, present holder of the world record in the century; Charles W. Paddock, Jackson V. Sholtz, and Lloyd Hahn.

Despite the fact that we are conceded an edge in the sprints, there will be enough foreign talent present to press the Yanks. Haenni of Switzerland ,wearing a small mustache and virtually untrained, has done the 100 meters in 10.4, and defeated Peacock over that distance in Europe last year.

Yoshioka of Japan sports a mark of 10.3, but the frail little Japanese isn't built to weather the three heats in the Olympic events.

FIRE EXTINGUISHED

The first forest fire of the season in the Buck Hill district occurred last week when a small blaze started eight miles from the station from lightning. The fire was extinguished by the fire warden with the aid of six CCC enrollees, from Camp Cusino. The fire was sighted in a country which is inaccessible by road so equipment was carried through the woods. Work on the extinguishing of the blaze necessitated the remaining of the fire fighters throughout the night as it was impossible to find a trail through the woods after dark had come. According to reports fires have not been so numerous this year as in previous years.
